Aging with HIV Janice E. Nichols, David C. Speer, Betty J. Watson, Mary Watson, Tiffany L. Vergon, Colette M. Vallee, Joan M. Meah, 2002-09-15 In 1998 approximately 30 million people worldwide were living with HIV AIDS about 5 million of whom became infected that year The epidemic continues to expand with an estimated doubling time of 10 years making AIDS the leading infectious cause of death ahead of tuberculosis and malaria Even in the U S A where the death rate from AIDS is declining as a result of effective drug therapies HIV infection rates continue to climb in several population groups The prevalence of AIDS among people over the age of 50 is steadily increasing and most older people are unprepared to address it for a number of reasons including the widespread discomfort with matters sexual and homosexual and the belief that elderly people are not sexually active and therefore not at risk This guide for care providers seeks to educate and inform readers about the difficulties and complications that accompany the disease in older people Thus while the appendix includes technical descriptions of methodology data and results the narratives in the chapters describing the findings and their practical implications are written in layman s language Topics covered include biomedical aspects demographics sexuality stressors mental health older women and patient care all of which are supported by case studies

HIV and Aging M., Brennan-Ing, R.F., DeMarco, 2016-11-22 Despite decades of attention on building a global HIV research and programming agenda HIV in older populations has generally been neglected until recently This new book focuses on HIV and aging in the context of ageism with regard to prevention treatment guidelines funding and the engagement of communities and health and social service organizations The lack of perceived HIV risk in late adulthood among older people themselves as well on the part of providers and society in general has led to a lack of investment in education testing and programmatic responses Ageism perpetuates the invisibility of older adults and in turn renders current medical and social service systems unprepared to respond to patients needs While ageism may lead to some advantages discounts for services for example it is the negative aspects that must be addressed when determining the appropriate community level response to the epidemic Aging with HIV in Sub-Saharan Africa Mark Brennan-Ing,Kristen E. Porter,Jennifer E. Kaufman,Catherine MacPhail,Janet Seeley,2022-06-16 With the development of effective antiretroviral therapies ART in the mid 1990s HIV became a treatable although serious condition and people who are adherent to HIV medications can attain normal or near normal life expectancies Because of the success of ART people 50 and older now make up a majority of people with HIV in high income countries and other places where ART is accessible The aging of the HIV epidemic is a global trend that is also being observed in low and middle income countries including countries in sub Saharan Africa where the greatest number of older people with HIV reside 3 7 million While globally over half of older adults with HIV are in sub Saharan Africa we have little information about the circumstances needs and resiliencies of this population which limits our ability to craft effective policy and programmatic responses to aging with HIV in this region At present our understanding of HIV and aging is dominated by information from the U S and Western Europe where the epidemiology of HIV and the infrastructure to provide social care are markedly different than in sub Saharan Africa Aging with HIV in Sub Saharan Africa addresses this gap in our knowledge by providing current research and perspectives on a range of health and psychosocial topics concerning these older adults from across this region This volume provides a unique and timely overview of growing older with HIV in a sub Saharan African context covering such topics as epidemiology health and functioning and social support as well as policy and program implications to support those growing older with HIV There are very few published volumes that address HIV and aging and this is the first book to consider HIV and aging in sub Saharan Africa Most publications in this area focus on HIV and aging in Uganda and South Africa This volume broadens the scope with contributions from authors working in West Africa Botswana and Kenya The range of topics covered here will be useful to professionals in a range of disciplines including psychology epidemiology gerontology sociology health care public health and social work HIV/AIDS and the Older Adult Kathleen Mary Nokes,1996 Twenty nine collected essays represent a critical history of Shakespeare s play as text and as theater beginning with Samuel Johnson in 1765 and ending with a review of the Royal Shakespeare Company production in 1991 The criticism centers on three aspects of the play the love friendship debate Midlife and Older Adults and HIV Sharon Keigher,Cynthia Cannon Poindexter,2013-10-08 Get a detailed overview of the social services provided for HIV infected midlife and older adults and find out where social work practice with this growing population is headed As more potent medications are being developed to treat HIV people who have contracted the virus are living longer lives than previously expected Survival means new side

Exploratory Study on Experiences of Midlife Women Living and Aging with HIV/AIDS Swarnalata Madduri Reddy,2006 The number of women living with HIV AIDS is increasing steadily Very few research studies have been done to understand the experiences of older women living with the disease The purpose of my study was to understand the challenges faced by midlife women living and aging with HIV AIDS through the progression of their illness Exploratory case studies were developed of three women between the ages of 50 55 years of age These women are only in their early midlife but because of their risky life style factors HIV treatment side effects and other comorbidities are dealing with disabilities emotional impacts difficult lifestyle adjustments and decline in functional capacities They are unable to use services provided for older adults and are excluded because of construction of age categories in providing services We need to adopt a life course approach in providing community and healthcare services for these women as their roles and challenges change in living and aging with HIV The elements of the Chronic Care Model were applied to suggest how the quality of life of these women could be enhanced as their needs change throughout their lives

HIV and Aging Sharon Dian Lee,2008-03-27 More than two decades into the global HIV epidemic many HIV positive patients who have access to antiretroviral medications are graying. These patients and their clinicians now face another set of complex health issues related to aging. HIV and Aging examines the known effects of HIV and HIV medications on older patients and on their immune system. HIV Over Fifty United States. Congress. Senate. Special Committee on Aging, 2005. HIV Plus, 2007-11. HIV Plus offers the latest stories on research, economics and treatment. The magazine raises awareness of HIV related cultural and policy developments in the United States and throughout the world. Evidence informing the intersection of HIV, aging and health, 2012.

NATURE OF THE PROBLEM The intersection of HIV, aging and health is an urgent issue due to the number of people over the age of 50 with HIV who are newly infected or long term survivors. The need for knowledge on HIV and aging has been echoed by the research of the National Institutes of Health who identify the critical need for evidence on HIV and aging.

16 To address this knowledge gap we have systematically reviewed and categorized the literature on HIV, aging and health with a focus on older people living with HIV. The characteristics of these papers are outlined in Table 1. The number of studies included in this review suggests that the examination of HIV, older age and health is a burgeoning area of research. Of these comparison studies, 113 (55.4%) examined the health impacts of older age by comparing older HIV positive samples with their younger counterparts, nine (4.4%) examined the health impacts of HIV by comparing older HIV positive samples with their HIV negative counterparts, and 15 (7.4%) examined the health impacts of both HIV and age using sub samples of varying ages and HIV serostatus. We provide an outline of the topics addressed in each of these domains in Table 3. We also provide a table outlining the characteristics of each included study in Appendix A and a list of the citations in Appendix B.

Physical Health There were 100 studies that addressed physical health in older people living with HIV. HIV Endurance Charlene F. D'Amore, 2023-09-05. HIV Endurance: Women's Journeys from Diagnosis to Aging offers an autoethnographic analysis of the lived experience of disclosing HIV to others, incorporating HIV into one's identity, challenging HIV stigma and aging with HIV. Charlene F. D'Amore combines her autoethnographic writing with the voices of seventeen other HIV positive women. The women offer advice to others on disclosing HIV, coping with HIV, challenging HIV stigma through education and advocacy and aging with HIV using spirituality and a renewed life purpose to find meaning. HIV Endurance offers a model of the HIV disclosure continuum, strategies to challenge HIV stigma, guidance to incorporate HIV into one's identity and ways that organizations can prepare for the growing number of people who are aging with HIV. HIV/AIDS and Older Adults Charles A. Emlet, MSW, PhD, 2004-03-31. This volume focuses on the ways in which HIV/AIDS can affect older adults. The chapters in this book discuss the variety of HIV/AIDS problems that we face at the individual, family and community levels. Topics examined include demographics and epidemiological aspects of HIV disease with this population, prevention of HIV disease, issues impacting individuals in a medical, psychological and social context and service needs. Originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Mental Health and Aging, the volume contains new chapters on demographics, HIV prevention and
