Agri-Food Supply Chain Management C. Ganesh Kumar, 2017 The purpose of this paper is to present a critical review of prior literature relating to agri food supply chain management. An in depth analysis has been carried out to identify the influential information from the literature. This paper has identified gaps to be explored about agricultural supply chain management SCM practices which may be used by researchers to enrich theory construction and practitioners may concentrate on establishing the extent and frontiers of agri food SCM. This research work is the first attempt to make a critical literature review of available literature on agri food SCM practices for developing countries like India. The research articles and other materials related to the agri food supply chain management were collected from online data bases like Scopus EBSCO and Google Scholar for the period of 10 years 2006-2016. The study performs content analysis and is followed by descriptive analysis. In the next phase, the literature in the field of agri-food supply chain management is classified into four broad categories viz general literature review of agri-food supply chain policies affecting the segments of agri-food supply chain individual segments of agri-food SCM structure of supply chain segments and conduct of supply chain segments and performance of supply chain segments. These four categories are comprehensively reviewed and elaborated the research gap in the literature based on agri-food supply chain management. Finally, potato supply chain of India is considered as a case example for comprehensive analysis and elaborated in detail.

Frontiers in agri-food supply chains Professor Sander de Leeuw, Dr Renzo Akkerman, Dr Rodrigo Romero-Silva, 2024-05-07 Provides a comprehensive overview of the challenges facing agri-food supply chains including the need to be more sustainable in light of the high environmental costs of global distribution. Addresses the external factors that can impact the logistics and performance of supply chains including political developments, international conflicts and pandemics such as COVID-19. Reviews the main agri-food supply chains used in different regions around the world focussing on those implanted in the Americas, Europe, Africa, Asia and the Middle East.

Integration and self regulation of quality management in Dutch agri-food supply chains Wijnand van Plasschenhoef, 2023-08-28 During the last decade sector wide crises in agriculture have rapidly followed each other resulting in serious consumer concerns about the quality and safety of agri-food products. To prevent new crises, governments have developed quality regulations and retailers have introduced quality management standards. However, concerns have been raised about the administrative burdens placed on firms because they must comply with many private and public quality regulations. Therefore, both government and firms strive for more integration and self regulation of quality management systems. By combining managerial and economic theory, this study builds a framework to demonstrate the impact of integrated quality management on self regulation and performance. Using empirical evidence from the poultry, meat, the fruit and vegetable and the flower and potted plant chains, this study shows that integrated quality management systems positively affect performance and self regulation. However, it is necessary to find committed partners that share the firm's quality objectives. In most cases, too strict enforcement of quality requirements is destructive, initiates conflict and does not lead to higher performance. Furthermore, governmental agencies should focus on innovative approaches to assure quality. Not legislation but factors such as media attention and corporate social responsibility enlarge the integration of quality management systems. This book is recommended for a broad audience of professionals, practitioners and policy makers who
