Learning Objectives: The goal of this lesson is to develop Close Reading, as well as Analysis, Synthesis, and Evaluation skills. Reading and Listening skills will also be focused through discussion. Students will analyze author’s purpose, themes, devices, mood, tone, symbolism, allusions, similes, personification, parallel structures, analogies, extended metaphors, metaphors, irony, allusions, imagery, puns, rhetorical questions, paradoxes, irony, etc., and influences of figurative language on rhetorical techniques. More importantly, students will synthesize the ideas in several selections. Patients on health with gravity and not. Finally, students will evaluate the ideas of Emerson’s response to Nature and compare to their own lives, as well as compare/contrast Emerson’s ideas.

Engaging Objectives / Classroom Objectives

1. Identifying Critical Information

2. Examining Similes and Metaphors

The teacher will begin by reading “Walden.” The teacher tells students that the Finnegans read that they are about to read and analyze one of the most famous US American literary texts. The teacher emphasizes again, students the power of these famous U.S. writings to influence the culture of today. The teacher provides biographical information on Emerson and Thoreau, and relates the ideas of these writers to American Transcendentalism and Emersonian Idealism. The teacher explains that the writing of the Finnegans on Transcendentalists continue the influence on today, and will be a continuation of their literary movements that are seen in poetry and writing, as well as in our everyday culture.

The teacher asks the students about the Finnegans. Finnegans then makes an observation. This is an activity will be repeated as they read and analyze the selections. See below.

Olson, Richard Olson, 2006-03-10 Galileo Newton Darwin These giants are remembered for their great contributions to science Often forgotten however is the profound influence that Christianity had on their lives and work This study explores the many ways in which religion its ideas attitudes practices and institutions interacted with science from the beginnings of the Scientific Revolution to the end of the nineteenth century Both scientists and persons of faith sometimes characterize the relationship between science and religion as confrontational Historian Richard G Olson finds instead that the interactions between science and religion in Western Christendom have been complex often mutually supportive even transformative This book explores those interactions by focusing on a sequence of major religious and intellectual movements from Christian Humanist efforts to turn science from a primarily contemplative exercise to an activity aimed at improving the quality of human life to the widely varied Christian responses to Darwinian ideas in both Europe and North America during the second half of the nineteenth century Education in a New Society Jal Mehta, Scott Davies, 2018-04-26 In recent decades sociology of education has been dominated by quantitative analyses of race class and gender gaps in educational achievement And while there s no question that such work is important it leaves a lot of other fruitful areas of inquiry unstudied This book takes that problem seriously considering the way the field has developed since the 1960s and arguing powerfully for its renewal The sociology of education the contributors show largely works with themes concepts and theories that were generated decades ago even as both the actual world of education and the discipline of sociology have changed considerably The moment has come they argue to break free of the past and begin asking new questions and developing new programs of empirical study Both rallying cry and road map Education in a New Society will galvanize the field Resources in Education ,1980-10 Science and Religion, 1450-1900 Richard Olson, 2004-10-30
