The Better Sort (Classic Reprint) Henry James, 2015-07-12 Excerpt from The Better Sort. Conscious as he was of what was between them though perhaps less conscious than ever of why there should at that time of day be anything he would yet scarce have supposed they could be so long in a house together without some word or some look. It had been since the Saturday afternoon and that made twenty four hours. The party five and thirty people and some of them great was one in which words and looks might more or less have gone astray. The effect none the less he judged would have been for her quite as for himself that no sound and no sign from the other had been picked up by either. They had happened both at dinner and at luncheon to be so placed as not to have to glare or to grin across and for the rest they could each in such a crowd as freely help the general ease to keep them apart as assist it to bring them together. One chance there was of course that might be beyond their control. He had been the night before half surprised at not finding her his fate when the long procession to the dining room solemnly hooked itself together. About the Publisher.
