Chapter 1: The American Government

Section 1.1

The American government is a system of checks and balances. It is designed to protect the rights of citizens and to ensure that no one branch of government becomes too powerful. The three branches of government are the executive, legislative, and judicial branches. Each branch has its own powers and responsibilities, and they all work together to govern the country.

The executive branch is headed by the President. The President is responsible for enforcing the laws and representing the country. The legislative branch is made up of Congress, which is divided into the House of Representatives and the Senate. Congress is responsible for making laws. The judicial branch is headed by the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court is responsible for interpreting the laws and ensuring that they are consistent with the Constitution.

What are the powers of the President? The President has the power to sign laws, veto laws, and declare war. The President also has the power to appoint and remove judges and other officials. The President is also the commander in chief of the armed forces. The President is elected for a four-year term and can be re-elected for one more term.
