The Critical Assessment of Research Alan Bailin,Ann Grafstein,2010-02-12 It is widely accepted among researchers and educators that the peer review process the reputation of the publisher and examination of the authors credentials are the gold standards for assessing the quality of research and information However in the contemporary research environment the traditional gold standards are no longer sufficient and the effective evaluation of information requires the consideration of additional factors including who has sponsored the research who controls the dissemination of the research what are the effects of dominant research paradigms and what are the financial interests of authors publishers and editors The role of new technologies including Web 2.0 is also addressed. Relevant examples such as controversies about positive evaluations of new medications that appear in peer-reviewed journals, the literature on Enron prior to the revelations that led to its collapse, and the suppression of research that does not conform to dominant paradigms offered to indicate the need for a more sophisticated and nuanced approach to evaluating information. Practical suggestions for the evaluation of information are an integral part of the text.
