Big Brands Big Trouble Lessons Learned The Hard Way:

Big Brands Big Trouble Jack Trout,2002-11-13 One of the most respected marketing gurus in the world shows why some of today's biggest brands are having trouble and how to avoid repeating their mistakes. It wasn't long ago that Levi Strauss, Xerox, Crest, AT&T, Firestone, and Digital Equipment dominated their respective markets. What happened to undermine their standings and those of other superbrands? Are their declines simply the inevitable consequence of change and the birth of new competition? In this important predecessor to the classic Differentiate or Die, the king of positioning, Jack Trout, answers that question with a resounding No. Writing in his signature straight-from-the-hip style, he reveals the disastrous marketing and strategy blunders that led to the dissolution of the most recognized superbrands. He clearly shows how those mistakes could have been avoided. With the help of in-depth case studies chronicling the events leading up to the falls from grace of Sears, Miller Brewing, Xerox, Crest, Burger King, and other past market leaders, he identifies the ten most common mistakes that big brands make and he develops a set of expert guidelines for marketing managers and executives on how to build, protect, manage, and expand their companies' brands and avoid brand-killing blunders.

The Talk of the Party

Sharon Jarvis,2005-07-07 How did liberal become a dirty word in American politics? How did compassionate conservative become a viable campaign theme? When did the independent voter become the most sought-after prize in modern campaigns? And why haven't third-party candidates enjoyed similar acclaim? The Talk of the Party listens to how the language of partisanship—including words like Democrat, Republican, party, liberal, conservative, and independent—has been used over the past fifty years and how it has created or limited political opportunities. Listening to the talk of the party can teach valuable lessons about campaigns, opportunities for public life, and the future of these American institutions.

Brand Failures

Matt Haig,2005 It's not just smaller, lesser-known companies that have launched dud brands. On the contrary, most of the world's global giants have launched new products that have flopped spectacularly and at great cost. Haig organizes these 100 failures into ten types, which include classic failures (e.g., New Coke) and idea failures (e.g., R.J. Reynolds smokeless cigarettes, extension failures (e.g., Harley-Davidson perfume), culture failures (e.g., Kellogg's in India), and technology failures (e.g., Pets.com)).

Mastering Customer Value Management Ray Kordupleski,2003 There is an emerging art and science of customer value management that is proving its worth in increased market share and shareholder value for the companies that practice it. Customer value management is about choosing value, determining what customers really value, and developing your value proposition, delivering value, making sure business processes are aligned with value, proposition, communicating value, educating the market on your value proposition. The concepts of customer value management and the practical tools that have been developed to support them are the subject of this book.
