Active Birth: The New Approach to Giving Birth Naturally (Non) Description :

What Is an Active Birth? DURING THE RAPID DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN OBSTETRICS in the past three hundred years, women have lost touch with their power as birth-givers. An active birth is nothing new. It is simply a convenient way of describing normal labor and birth and the way that a woman behaves when she is following her own instincts and the physiological logic of her body. It is a way of saying that she herself controls her body while giving birth, rather than being the passive recipient of a birth that is managed by her attendants. By deciding to have an active birth you will be reclaiming your fundamental power as a birth-giver, a mother, and a woman. You will also be giving your baby the best possible start in life and a safe transition from the womb to the world. Should an unusual difficulty or complication arise, you will be free to make use of the safety net of modern obstetric care, knowing that you have done your very best and also knowing that this is your choice and that the intervention was really necessary. In this way, even the most difficult birth can be a positive experience. An active birth is instinctive. It involves your giving birth quite naturally and spontaneously through your own will and
