Active Learning Burr Settles:

Active Learning Burr Settles,2012 Provides a general introduction to active learning It outlines several scenarios in which queries might be formulated and details many query selection algorithms which have been organised into four broad categories or query selection frameworks The book also touches on some of the theoretical foundations of active learning and concludes with an overview of the strengths and weaknesses of these approaches

Active Learning Burr

Chen,2012-08-07 The key idea behind active learning is that a machine learning algorithm can perform better with less training if it is allowed to choose the data from which it learns An active learner may pose queries usually in the form of unlabeled data instances to be labeled by an oracle e g a human annotator that already understands the nature of the problem This sort of approach is well motivated in many modern machine learning and data mining applications where unlabeled data may be abundant or easy to come by but training labels are difficult time consuming or expensive to obtain This book is a general introduction to active learning It outlines several scenarios in which queries might be formulated and details many query selection algorithms which have been organized into four broad categories or query selection frameworks We also touch on some of the theoretical foundations of active learning and conclude with an overview of the strengths and weaknesses of these approaches in practice including a summary of ongoing work to address these open challenges and opportunities Table of Contents Automating Inquiry Uncertainty Sampling Searching Through the Hypothesis Space Minimizing Expected Error and Variance Exploiting Structure in Data Theory Practical Considerations

Deep Learning in Textual Low-Data Regimes for Cybersecurity Markus Bayer,2025-08-20 In today s fast paced cybersecurity landscape professionals are increasingly challenged by the vast volumes of cyber threat data making it difficult to identify and mitigate threats effectively Traditional clustering methods help in broadly categorizing threats but fall short when it comes to the fine grained analysis necessary for precise threat management Supervised machine learning offers a potential solution but the rapidly changing nature of cyber threats renders static models ineffective and the creation of new models too labor intensive This book addresses these challenges by introducing innovative low data regime methods that enhance the machine learning process with minimal labeled data The proposed approach spans four key stages Data Acquisition Leveraging active learning with advanced models like GPT 4 to optimize data labeling Preprocessing Utilizing GPT 2 and GPT 3 for data augmentation to enrich and diversify datasets Model Selection Developing a specialized cybersecurity language model and using multi level transfer learning Prediction Introducing a novel adversarial example generation method

Extracting Spatial Information from Historical Maps Benedikt Budig, 2018-11-23

Historical maps are fascinating documents and a valuable source of information for scientists of various disciplines Many of these maps are available as scanned bitmap images but in order to make them searchable in useful ways a structured representation of the contained information is desirable This book deals with the extraction of spatial information from historical maps This cannot be expected to be solved fully automatically since it involves difficult semantics but is also too tedious to be done manually at scale The methodology used in this book combines the strengths of both computers and humans it describes efficient algorithms to largely automate information extraction tasks and pairs these algorithms with smart user interactions to handle what is not understood by the algorithm The effectiveness of this approach is shown for various kinds of spatial documents from the 16th to the early 20th century
