Nature and Nothingness Robert S. Corrington, 2017-01-23 Is nothingness found in nature or is it in some realm disconnected from nature Nature and Nothingness An Essay in Ordinal Phenomenology argues for the former and explores four types of nothingness as found in nature holes in nature totalizing nothingness in horror naturing nothingness and encompassing nothingness Using ordinal phenomenology Robert S Corrington reveals the great perennial fissuring within the one nature that there is The book includes a detailed analysis of religious violence as it correlates to the holes in nature such as anxiety bereavement loss fear of fragmentation and loss of identity It also examines the various ways in which horror is encountered in a literary context using the work of Edgar Allen Poe and H P Lovecraft The analysis is comparative and makes use of feminist philosophy as well as Buddhist Taoist theosophical and American philosophy Using resources from ecstatic naturalism and deep pantheism Corrington argues that though nothingness takes many forms they are all guises of the same vast Nothingness Nature, Art, and Education in East Asia Ruyu Hung, 2022-12-30 This volume explores the deeply interwoven connection of education art and nature in the context of East Asia With contributions from authors in South Korea Japan and Taiwan the book considers unnoticed but significant themes involved in the interplay of nature art and education It manifests how nature and art can educate and how education and nature play the role of art The chapters explore a range of themes relevant to East Asian characteristics including skill acquisition Japanese calendar arts and ritual of feelings garden architecture the ritualised body collaborative poetry art translational language between humans and nature the Confucian classical Six Arts the artistic embodiment of the Kyoto School and the heritage art based education in Korea The authors examine these themes in novel ways to bring to light the relevance of the East Asian insights to the contemporary global world This book is an outstanding resource to all researchers scholars and students interested in educational aesthetics philosophy of education East Asian studies comparative education and intercultural education Deep Pantheism Robert S. Corrington, 2015-12-09 This book is a study in a new form of religious naturalism called Deep Pantheism which has roots in American Transcendentalism but also in phenomenology and Asian thought It argues that the great divide within nature is that between nature naturing and nature natured the former term defined as Nature creating itself out of itself alone while the latter term defined as The innumerable orders of the World Explorations are made of the connections among the unconscious of nature the archetypes and the various layers of the human psyche The Selving process is analyzed using the work of C G Jung and Otto Rank Evolution and involution are compared as they relate to the Encompassing and the priority of art over most forms of religion is argued for Painting and Presence Anthony Rudd, 2022 This book is concerned with why or whether paintings have value why they might be worth creating and attending to The author traces an understanding of painting as ontologically revelatory from the theology of the Byzantine Icon to classical Chinese appreciations of landscape painting and Phenomenologists inspired by European Modernist art Nature's Primal Self Nam T. Nguyen, 2011-12-28 Nature s Primal Self examines Corrington s thought called ecstatic naturalism in juxtaposition to both C S Peirce s pragmatic and semiotic concept of the self and Karl Jaspers existential elucidation of Existenz Peirce s and Jaspers anthropocentrism is thus corrected by Corrington s ecstatic naturalism Ecstatic naturalism as a new movement is both a semiotic theoretical method and a metaphysics that probes deeply into the ontological divide between nature naturing and nature natured Author Nam T Nguyen attempts to achieve three goals first to present and elucidate the underlying philosophical concepts of Charles Peirce Karl Jaspers and Robert Corrington second to critique the anthropocentric self of Peirce s semiotic pragmatism and of Jaspers existential anthropology periechontology from the standpoint of ecstatic naturalism and third to introduce the concept of nature s primal self radically grounded in the perspective of ecstatic naturalism as a judicious more encompassing and richer framework compared to Peirce's semiotic construction of the self and Jaspers' existential concept of Existenz

Nature's Religion Robert S. Corrington, 1997-10-16 In the wake of both the semiotic and the psychoanalytic revolutions how is it possible to describe the object of religious worship in realist terms Semioticians argue that each object is known only insofar as it gives birth to a series of signs and interpretants new signs From the psychoanalytic side religious beliefs are seen to belong to transference energies and projections that contaminate the religious object with all too human complexes In Nature's Religion distinguished theologian and philosopher Robert S. Corrington weaves together the concept of infinite semiosis with that of the transference to show that the self does have access to something in nature that is intrinsically religious Corrington argues that signs and our various transference fields can and do connect us with fully natural religious powers that are not of our own making thereby opening up a path past the Western monotheisms to a capacious religion of nature With a foreword by Robert C. Neville Nature's Religion is essential reading for philosophers of religion scholars of the psychology of religion and theologians

Nature and Spirit Robert S. Corrington, 1992 Phenomenological descriptions are made of the human process and its struggles between its finite and transcendent dimensions The self is located within both natural and interpretive i e hermeneutic communities and the semiotic implications of both types of community are detailed The phenomenon of worldhood i e that which is not a world or within the world but which locates and encompasses all worlds is examined from the standpoint of a transformation of Heidegger's formulations The pragmatic and semiotic dimensions of worldhood are defined in the context of an enlarged conception of nature Finally God's several dimensions are explored as they relate to each other and to the world within which they are often embedded Process theology is challenged for its failure to explore what the author considers to be the fragmented yet self transfiguring quality of the divine life

Nature and Spirit Robert Corrington, 2021 Nature and Spirit An Essay in Ecstatic Naturalism develops an enlarged conception of nature that in turn calls for a transformed naturalism Online more descriptive naturalisms such as those by Dewey Santayana and Buchler ecstatic naturalism works out of the fundamental ontological difference between nature naturing natura naturans and nature natured natura naturata This difference underlies all other variations within a generic conception of nature The spirit operates within a generic conception of nature The spirit operates within a fragmented nature and has its own unique locations Ecstatic naturalism does not eulogize spirit nor impose a process theodicy upon nature as a whole but carefully describes the ways in which spirit emerges from finite locations within the world Methodologically the text radically regrounds phenomenology so that it can work more closely with a metaphysics seeking the most generic forms of nature The move from a transcendental phenomenology which rests upon a profound misconception of the parcel of a radicalized naturalism makes it possible to show how all orders of relevance are related to nature and to the spirit This in turn relocates the human process with its dialectical tension between finitude and transcendence and places the self fully within the emergent structures of the community of interpreters as that community lives out of hope The concept of worldhood is regrounded in pragmatic and semiotic terms thus putting pressure on Heidegger's formulations Peirce's pragmatic categorical structure is used to show how worldhood differs from any other order within the world The correlation of the potencies of nature which are presemiotic and preordinal with the orders of the world itself is possible only through an ordinal phenomenology that remains attuned to the fundamental difference between nature naturing the potencies and nature natured the orders of the world Finally the text redefines the divine natures in the light of an ecstatic naturalism that sees god as an order within the world that experiences the fragmented quality of nature Process theology is challenged for its inability to grasp the tensions between god and the encompassing Four divine natures are laid bare as they relate to nature and to each other The work concludes with a description of the divine life in the face of the encompassing
