W. Clark,2015-06-02 Excerpt from A Practical Grammar In Which Words Phrases and Sentences Are Classified According to Their Offices and Their Relation to Each Other The Grammar of a Language Quintilian has justly remarked is like the foundation of a building the most important part although out of sight and not always properly valued by those most interested in its condition In the opinion of many modern educators there is a tendency on the part of all to neglect this important branch of English Education not so much from a conviction that the science is not important as that there is a radical defect in the common method of presenting it to the attention of the scholar This was the sentiment of the Author when some ten years since he was called to the supervision of a Literary Institution in which was established a department for the education of Teachers Accordingly a recourse was had to oral instruction and for the convenience of teachers a manuscript grammar was prepared which embodied the principles of the science and the Author's mode of presenting it These principles and this method have been properly tested by numerous and advanced classes during the seven years last past The manuscript has in the mean time from continued additions unexpectedly grown to a book It has received the favorable notice of teachers and its publication has been by teachers repeatedly solicited To these solicitations the Author is constrained to yield and in the hope and belief that the work will add to the stock of human knowledge or at least tend to that result by giving an increased interest to the study of the English Language it is with diffidence submitted to the public In revising the work for publication an effort has been made to render it simple in style comprehensive in matter adapted to the capacities of the younger pupil and to the wants of the more advanced scholar It is confidently believed that the Method of teaching Grammar herein suggested is the true method The method adopted by most text books may be well suited to the wants of foreigners in first learning our language About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of
