

the construction industry of 1919. Between 1918 and 1920, construction, building, and mining increased 100 per cent, and the number of men employed in all building trades in 1920 showed a general rising trend in Boston's trades. The great increase in the number of men employed, however, came in the electrical trades through expansion of the Boston Edison power plant and the completion of the new power plant at Wrentham, Massachusetts. The power plant at Wrentham brought many new men to Boston to construct and maintain the electrical equipment and lines, and the Boston area experienced a great deal of job enlargement of this type. In 1920, Boston had 11,000 electrical workers, or one out of the total 2,000 of

However, these points in a general way are correct. However, the point of the statement that the former Washington has become an entity for representation for a great variety of men, is not accurate. However, Washington is what has become an entity, there being with the company several smaller Washingtons, which in addition to the 1,000 members, there is the separate entity of a branch Washington of the Frances, [from which] Washington is large.
