

The Ultimate Beginner's Guide to Writing Essays

1. Decide what topic you'll be focusing on. Ask yourself if you want the topic to be a general overview or a major analysis.
2. Create an outline or a diagram for your ideas. It is important that you are able to organize your thoughts effectively by putting it all onto paper.
3. Write a thesis statement. The first part of the thesis statement should be all about introducing your topic while the second part should tell the point of the essay.
4. Write the body. The body contains three major parts: the main point, sub points, and the elaboration of the sub points.

What You Need to Avoid When Writing Essays

What You Need to Avoid When Writing Essays

- Using the word "I"
Using the word "I" limits your essay's perspective. It makes your essay appear immature.
- Logical Fallacies
You should avoid writing logical fallacies. Tackling in evidence if you truly want to strengthen your argument.
- Slang
If you use slang in your writing, it will make your essay appear unintelligent to the reader. Instead, use more sophisticated words in the English language, that you can use.
- Going Off into a Tangent
Make sure that you write only things that thoughts and nothing something that would keep the essay going.
- Contractions
A good example of a contraction is when you shorten the shortened form of the words. When you do this in an essay, unintelligent and dull, you should avoid this at all times.
- Over-dramatization
There are times when writers accidentally or purposely over-dramatize a sentence. Unfortunately, this would only make the writer look unprofessional and immature.
- Making Assumptions
Even with something that is common knowledge, you should never assume it in anyway that is assuming.

The Components of an Effective Essay

 Thesis Its main role is to introduce the topic while maintaining the element of argument.
 A Problem or Question A successful essay should always contain a problem, preferably one that is of a current issue. This would help attract readers to read your essay.
 Evidence Your essay should always contain evidence of your arguments. This should have to be the material that you are working with. This is important because it helps you prove the thesis.
 Analysis This is how the writer turns the evidence into argument as well as explaining how the evidence supports the thesis.
 Structure The essay should flow in a logical way. The readers should be able to understand the essay and how each section extends the arguments while preparing them for the arguments to come.

How to Write the Conclusion

SUGGESTIONS

Answer the question "so what?"
Show your readers why this paper was important.

Synthesize, don't summarize. Show the readers how the points you made and the support and examples you used were not just random. Use this skill and have fun!

Give your reader something to think about—perhaps a way to use your paper in the "real" world. Think globally.

Create a new meaning.
By demonstrating how your ideas work together, you can create a new picture. Often, the sum of the paper is worth more than its parts.

A writer needs to keep in mind that the conclusion is often what a reader remembers best. Your conclusion should be the best part of your paper.

STRATEGIES

Following the introduction, in Exercises 10, a good strategy is to practice solving problems involving circles.

Challenging the reader
By issuing a challenge to your readers, you are helping them to redirect the information in the paper, and they will be more willing to take action.

Looking to the future, students can emphasize the importance of your paper or redirect the readers' thought process. It may help them apply the new information to their lives.

posing questions  can help your audience either to your readers or in general, may help your readers gain a new perspective on the topic with which they may not have held before reading your publication.
