modern racism based on biophysical features such as prejudice did not exist in these ancient societies. It was culture rather than biophysical nature that was the most important criterion for distinguishing us from them. By examining how societies conceive their prejudices, this book breaks new ground in the study of ancient history and opens new ways to look at human society both ancient and modern.

The Bemis History and Genealogy Thomas Waln-Morgan Draper, 1900 Ancient Worlds Richard Miles, 2011-09-29

Across the Middle East, the Mediterranean, and the Nile Delta, awe-inspiring monstrous ruins are scattered across the landscape: vast palaces, temples, fortresses, shattered statues of ancient gods, carvings praising the eternal power of long forgotten dynasties. These ruins, the remainder of thousands of years of human civilization, are both inspirational in their grandeur and terrible in that their once teeming centres of population were all ultimately destroyed and abandoned. In this major book, Richard Miles recreates these extraordinary cities, ranging from the Euphrates to the Roman Empire, to understand the roots of human civilization. His challenge is to make us understand that the cities which define culture, religion, and economic success, and which are humanity's greatest invention, have always had a cruel edge to them: building systems that have provided both amazing opportunities and back-breaking hardship. This exhilarating book is both a pleasure to read and a challenge to us all to think about our past and about the present.
