

APHG: Unit 4 Test Study Guide

Know all terms and concepts from your Unit 4 vocabulary – your completed definitions with examples/applications are due by 8:30am on the test day.

Strategies for studying:

- Review class notes while watching the topic videos on AP Classroom (these should be released on 10/29) – I recommend adding to your notes as you review – active studying (writing – doing something instead of "just watching" is a more effective way to review).
- Work through Unit 4 in a test prep book (like Barron's or Princeton Review) if you have one.
- Review the questions in your Unit 4 Progress Check (we will complete this on 11/4) and Topic Questions on AP Classroom (in addition to another strategy from above – I wouldn't rely just on this alone)
- Review Unit 4 in the Ethel Wood Study Guide (in addition to another strategy from above – I wouldn't rely just on this alone)

Focus your time on the studying the content for the ones you struggled with the most during the unit.

4.1: Introduction to Political Geography

- Independent states are the primary building blocks of the world political map.
- Types of political entities include nations, nation-states, stateless nations, multinational states, multistate nations, and autonomous and semiautonomous regions, such as American Indian reservations.

4.2: Political Processes

- The concepts of sovereignty, nation-states, and self-determination shape the contemporary world.
- Colonialism, imperialism, independence movements, and devolution along national lines have influenced contemporary political boundaries.

4.3: Political Power & Territoriality

- Political power is expressed geographically as control over people, land, and resources, as illustrated by neocolonialism, shatterbelts, and choke points.
- Territoriality is the connection of people, their culture, and their economic systems to the land.

4.4: Defining Political Boundaries

- Types of political boundaries include relic, superimposed, subsequent, antecedent, geometric, and consequent boundaries.

4.5: Function of Political Boundaries

- Boundaries are defined, delimited, demarcated, and administered to establish limits of
