The Atlanta Campaign David A. Powell, 2025-09-15 Details Sherman's grueling advance from the Etowah River to Kennesaw Mountain during the 1864 Atlanta Campaign The scope drama and importance of the 1864 Atlanta Campaign was on a par with Ulysses S Grant's Overland Campaign in Virginia Despite its criticality and massive array of primary source material the operations in North Georgia have lingered in the shadows Award winning author David A Powell's first of five installments The Atlanta Campaign Volume 1 Dalton to Cassville May 1 19 1864 treated the opening phase of the campaign weeks of maneuver and several days of heavy fighting at Resaca after which the Confederates slipped out of Sherman's traps and escaped across the Oostanaula and Etowah rivers This second volume From the Etowah River to Kennesaw Mountain May 20 June 27 1864 marches with the armies and their leaders deeper into Georgia The heavyweight match unfolding between U S Grant and Robert E Lee from the Wilderness to the trenches of Cold Harbor increased the pressure on Sherman to do everything he could to prevent Joe Johnston from sending troops to reinforce the Virginia army Sherman had closed half the distance to Johnston's base at Atlanta but the Army of Tennessee had grown in numbers and the odds that were once 2 to 1 in his favor were now nearly even Sherman opened the second phase of the campaign on May 23 by throwing his army across the Etowah Instead of moving down the railroad to Allatoona however he marched west of Marietta to Dallas The next five weeks were by some measures the hardest of the entire summer as maneuvering gave way to trench warfare first along the New Hope Line then Pine and Lost mountains along the Mud Creek Line and finally atop the imposing slopes of Kennesaw Mountain The daily grind punctuated by periodic assaults at New Hope Church Pickett's Mill Gilgal Church Pigeon Hill and Cheatham Hill took a terrible toll on both armies The heavy rain through most of June made life in the field a misery sick lists spiked and men and horses broke down or died Neither side could claim victory as June drew to a close Sherman remained undaunted He would return to flanking And this time Atlanta was a mere dozen miles distant This multivolume study is based heavily on hundreds of primary accounts many of which have never been used 21 original maps a firm understanding of the terrain and a keen grasp of military strategy and tactics Powell's The Atlanta Campaign is this generation's definitive treatment of one of the most important and fascinating confrontations of the entire Civil War And it will stand the test of time

The Battle of Peach Tree Creek Earl J. Hess, 2017-08-09 On July 20 1864 the Civil War struggle for Atlanta reached a pivotal moment As William T Sherman's Union forces came ever nearer the city the defending Confederate Army of Tennessee replaced its commanding general removing Joseph E Johnston and elevating John Bell Hood This decision stunned and demoralized Confederate troops just when Hood was compelled to take the offensive against the approaching Federals Attacking northward from Atlanta's defenses Hood's men struck George H Thomas's Army of the Cumberland just after it crossed Peach Tree Creek on July 20. Initially taken by surprise the Federals fought back with spirit and nullified all the advantages the Confederates first enjoyed. As a result the Federals achieved a remarkable defensive victory. Offering new and definitive interpretations of the battle's place within the Atlanta campaign Earl J Hess describes how several Confederate regiments and brigades made a pretense of advancing but then stopped partway to the objective and took cover for the rest of the afternoon on July 20. Hess shows that morale played an unusually important role in determining the outcome at Peach Tree Creek: a soured mood among the Confederates and overwhelming confidence among the Federals spelled disaster for one side and victory for the other.

Military Bibliography of the Civil War: Regimental publications and personal narratives. Union and Confederate biographies. General references. Armed forces. Campaigns and battles, 2003 Volume IV Compiled and revised by Silas Felton 1063 pp revised with books missed in vols I II and III regimental publications personal narratives biographies campaigns and battles Northern and Southern Felton's new compilation is without peer. He covers the subject from five different perspectives: Regimental Publications and Personal Narratives; Union and Confederate Biographies; General References; Armed Forces; and Campaigns and Battles. And making the work extremely useful the last 236 pages contain a complete Index of Authors of Volumes I through IV as well as a new Index of Titles in the Revised Volume IV. Furthermore to clear up confusion created by the multiple names often used by Confederate units during the war, artillery batteries in particular which carried a state designation but were commonly known by the battery commander's name, Felton has cited a written work with a single number designation but indexed and listed it under its common appellation to aid the researcher and eliminate confusion.

Camp Fires of Georgia's Troops, 1861-1865 William S. Smedlund, 1994 Of all the works relating to the War Between the States not one is designed to record the camps of the men who spent most of their time in bivouac or encampments. More men died in various camps of disease and wounds from battle than died on the battlefield. Thousand of letters were written in these camps. Many have survived fires, floods and the indifference of generations since they reached the homes of anxious friends and relatives. They record family history, the battles, the mood of the army, troop movements, activities in camp, the sickness, the death and the sad and happy times whenever a letter was received from home. This book is an attempt to record the camps of Georgia's troops that were named in honor of the martyrs for the lost cause, prominent citizens, past and present leaders and those who gave of their time and resources to assist the men and boys in camp. Some were named for their location and others reflected their moods or environment.
