Across The Ravaged Land:

Across the Ravaged Land Nick Brandt,2013-09-24 Across the Ravaged Land is the third and final volume in Nick Brandt's trilogy of books documenting the disappearing animals of eastern Africa. The book offers a darker vision of this world still filled with a stunning beauty but now tragically tainted and fast disappearing at the hands of man. In addition to a range of starkly powerful animal portraits, Brandt introduces some new themes as humans make an appearance for the first time. He also contributes two essays summing up his photographic odyssey which has taken more than a decade of intensive work to complete.

The book focuses on the key actors and on the ground work of the Libraries Section in four central areas: empowering libraries around the world to acquire the books they wanted and needed; facilitating expanded global production of quality translations and affordable books; participating in debates over the contested fate of confiscated books and displaced libraries; and formulating notions of cultural rights as human rights. Through examples from France, Poland and surviving Jewish Europe, this book provides new insight into the complexities and specificities of UNESCO's role in the realm of books, libraries and networks of information exchange during the early postwar, post-Holocaust, Cold War years.

Nelson's Encyclopedia of Camping Edward C. Janes,1963      Memorials of Old Durham Henry R. Leighton,1910

The Strongest God Heretaunga Pat Baker,1990 This historical novel brings a new perspective to events during the New Zealand Wars. Traditional Maori beliefs were challenged by European concepts. Maori and missionary tragically failed to understand each other's gods. Pai Marire, the new religion which the Hauhau brought to Opotiki, was based on the wandering Jews of the Old Testament. The religion of the new settlers often seemed to be based on money, power and land. This book is about the men and women of the 1860s: the Reverend Carl Volkner and his wife Emma, the Whakatohea leaders Nikora and Mihiterina, and the chiefs and tribespeople together with visiting traders and the businessmen of Auckland. It is a story of conflict between gods old and new, between the old ways of the tribes and the new ways of the individual between those who belonged to the land and those who wanted to own it It is about people who sought peace in too many different ways and who were locked in an escalating drama of confrontation and misunderstanding It culminates in acts of violence which have reverberated down through the generations of both Maori and European New Zealanders Jacket
