

Animal Farm Revision Guide

Chapter I

After lights out, all the animals gather in the big barn to hear old Major communicate his strange dream of the previous night. Before doing so, he imparts his life learnings: that the existence of animals is one of toil and drudgery and that Man is the enemy; if animals are to ever achieve better lives then they must unite against Man. A vote is held to ascertain whether wild creatures such as rats should be considered comrades; though an overwhelming majority votes that they are, there are a few in opposition.

His dream was the remembrance

Power and Control

Old Major's speech is heavily focused on power.

- intellectual power over people
- unorthodox, revolutionary social/political/unpolitical
- revolutionary social/unpolitical (proves use of this notion)

Revolts in most, if not all, forms, that result in general peasant起义 (revolution) are based on the notion of 'intellectual power over people'. Old Major's speech is heavily focused on the notion of 'intellectual power over people' and 'revolutionary social/unpolitical' (proves use of this notion).

Old Major's primary message is that animals are oppressed. 'Revolution' comes from 'revolutionary social/unpolitical'. Revolution requires 'intellectual power over people' (revolutionary). This is possible via either (a) direct opposition (revolutionary social/unpolitical) or (b) through 'revolutionary social/unpolitical' (revolutionary social/unpolitical). Most animals are not the most intelligent species in the animal kingdom, so they cannot directly oppose (revolutionary social/unpolitical), but they can oppose (revolutionary social/unpolitical) via the pigs (revolutionary social/unpolitical). The pigs (revolutionary social/unpolitical) are the most intelligent species in the animal kingdom (revolutionary social/unpolitical). Most animals are not the most intelligent species in the animal kingdom (revolutionary social/unpolitical).

Old Major's primary message is that animals are oppressed. 'Revolution' comes from 'revolutionary social/unpolitical'. Revolution requires 'intellectual power over people' (revolutionary). This is possible via either (a) direct opposition (revolutionary social/unpolitical) or (b) through 'revolutionary social/unpolitical' (revolutionary social/unpolitical). Context

Old Major's speech, particularly towards the beginning, is heavily focused on power. This is consistent with the historical context of the Russian Revolution of 1917. The Russian Revolution of 1917 was a revolution in Russia that overthrew the Tsarist autocracy and replaced it with the Bolsheviks (Communist Party of Russia). This revolution, which is considered a 'revolutionary social/unpolitical' (revolutionary social/unpolitical), was led by Vladimir Lenin and Joseph Stalin. The revolution was successful, but it also brought about significant social and political changes, including the establishment of the Soviet Union and the implementation of a communist economic system. The revolution was also influenced by the First World War, which led to the collapse of the Tsarist government and the rise of the Bolsheviks.
