Meta Meta packages

There are two "Meta Meta Packages": BackTrack-world and BackTrack-desktop. BackTrack-World contains all the backtrack meta packages, while backtrack-desktop contains backtrack-world, backtrack-networking and backtrack-multimedia. The latter two meta packages are select applications imported from Ubuntu Repositories.

Working with BackTrack

BackTrack 4 contains an "imported" KDE3 repository, alongside the KDE4 Ubuntu Intrepid repositories.

Updating tools manually

Our BackTrack repositories will always strive to keep updated with the latest versions of tools, with the exception of a select few. These "special" tools get updated by their authors very frequently, and often include significant updates. We felt that creating static binaries for these types of tools would not be beneficial and users were better of keeping these tools synched with the SVN versions respectively. The tools include MSF, W3AF, Nikto, etc.

Installation

BackTrack comes as a live CD, so to run it, you simply need to insert it in the CD drive and then boot the system. At the prompt, log on as root and then enter the root password toor before going on to set up the GUI with xconf. After you have completed the setup, simply type startx to launch the GUI. If an error occurs, try gui as a workaround for launching the graphical interface.If you need to, you can type dhcpcd to ask the DHCP server for an IP address. BackTrack does not do this automatically. BackTrack's KDE-based menu system provides access to dozens of security tools and other forensic-analysis applications [see Figure 1]. Browsing the BackTrack menu is a little like browsing the many menus and submenus of a gamer distribution; only, instead of a bunch of games, the GUI is stocked with sniffers, spoofers, scanners, and other utilities to assist you with security testing.

Creating your own Live CD — Method 1

Creating your own flavor of BackTrack is easy.
1. Download and install the bare bones version of BackTrack.
2. Use apt-get to install required packages or meta packages.
3. Use remastersys to repackage your installation.

Creating your own Live CD — Method 2

Download the BackTrack 4 iso. Use the customization script to update and modify your build as show here:
