Nighttime visibility has been shown to be influenced by the lamp type used for roadway lighting because the lamp s spectral output can influence sensors in the retina that are active at night This report investigates the nature of these spectral effects and provides an in depth review of available knowledge It also addresses lighting levels and their relationship to driver safety Three candidate lamp types have been analyzed in terms of technical characteristics and associated costs This involves factors such as the efficacy with which the sources produce light lamp life and maintenance characteristics Ideal lighting designs have been performed using the three sources for identical road sections and initial and operating costs have been calculated to assist in contrasting the difference between the sources Evaluation of Alternative Lighting Systems for Guide Sign Illumination Jonathan Everett Upchurch, 1986 The study objective was to identify a lighting system which has a lower power cost and reduced maintenance requirements and which provides adequately for motorists needs in terms of legibility and illumination level Twenty five candidate lighting systems were identified through a review of technical data and specifications for lamps and fixtures by an independent lighting expert Photometric tests and computer analyses of sign illumination levels reduced the number of candidates to ten alternative systems which were then field tested Each alternative lighting system was tested for 10 to 14 months Sign luminance was measured with a telephotometer Power consumption was monitored Maintenance requirements and lamp life were noted A human factors study determined legibility distance and rated viewing comfort lighting uniformity and color rendition An economic analysis was performed which considered the initial cost of acquiring and installing the lighting systems and annual costs for electric power washing relamping and ballast replacement A lighting system using the high pressure sodium light source was recommended Compared to the existing commonly used fluorescent system it uses one third as much electric power and has about one third of the annual owning and operating cost The recommended system has a satisfactory illumination level and provides the best legibility distance of the ten systems tested
