

AP Biology - Chapter 3 Cellular Respiration Assignment

- What is the relationship between anaerobic and aerobic biology?
 Anaerobic means "without oxygen" and aerobic means "with oxygen". Anaerobic respiration is the breakdown of glucose into pyruvate, which can then be converted into ethanol or lactic acid. Aerobic respiration is the breakdown of glucose into pyruvate, which is then converted into acetyl-CoA, which enters the Citric Acid Cycle. The Citric Acid Cycle produces NADH and FADH<sub>2</sub>, which are used in the Electron Transport Chain to produce ATP.
- What does an electron transport chain and what is the difference between a lowering and maximum electron potential?
 The electron transport chain is a series of protein complexes in the inner mitochondrial membrane that transfer electrons from NADH and FADH<sub>2</sub> to oxygen, which is reduced to water. The difference between a lowering and maximum electron potential is the difference in the energy levels of the electron carriers in the chain. The maximum electron potential is the energy level of the most reduced carrier, and the lowering electron potential is the energy level of the most oxidized carrier.
- Describe the process and purpose of cell respiration.
 Cell respiration is the process by which cells convert glucose and oxygen into ATP, the energy currency of the cell. The process involves the breakdown of glucose into pyruvate, which is then converted into acetyl-CoA, which enters the Citric Acid Cycle. The Citric Acid Cycle produces NADH and FADH<sub>2</sub>, which are used in the Electron Transport Chain to produce ATP.
- Explain peroxisome cell bodies - structure and function.

- What is peroxisome and its primary role in the cell? How does it differ from other organelles?
 Peroxisomes are organelles that are involved in the breakdown of long-chain fatty acids and the synthesis of plasmalogen phospholipids. They are found in all eukaryotic cells and are involved in a variety of metabolic processes, including the oxidation of very long-chain fatty acids and the synthesis of plasmalogen phospholipids.
