The Infernal Return Rodney Farnsworth, 2001-10-30 George Lukas and other leading filmmakers acknowledge their indebtedness to mythographic scholarship on archetypes In his new study author Rodney Farnsworth identifies a pattern of filmmakers obsessions with archetypal rituals centered on sacrifice and the family in films made between 1977 and 1983 a period of political upheaval on both sides of the Atlantic Combining a strong historical reading of the films in a sociopolitical context and utilizing Queer Theory as a framework for his arguments Farnsworth offers a close examination of key films of the period including works by Stanley Kubrick Robert Altman and Francis Ford Coppola and provides a fascinating and timely glimpse of an important political and cinematic time Marking the end of a more liberal era the late seventies and early eighties witnessed the growth of reactionary conservative movements such as the New Religious Political Right These were the years that gave birth to movies from esoteric art house pictures to blockbusters such as Star Wars that seemed in many cases to be adaptations of primordial mythology subverting liberal to moderate views into reactionary depictions of family life Although filmmakers had turned to these myths to shape their works Farnsworth observes the unstable volatile nature of the archetypes deconstructed their best social intentions into something rich strange and deadly This thought provoking work will be of interest to students of social history as well as film studies
