Aashto Design Guide:

Roadside Design Guide American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials. Task Force for Roadside Safety, 2011 The Roadside Design Guide presents a synthesis of current information and operating practices related to roadside safety and is written in dual units metric and U S Customary This book is a guide It is not a standard nor is it a design policy It is intended to use as a resource document from which individual highway agencies can develop standards and policies Although much of the material in the guide can be considered universal in its application several recommendations are subjective in nature and may need modification to fit local conditions However it is important that significant deviations from the guide be based on operational experience and objective analysis The 2011 edition of the AASHTO Roadside Design Guide has been updated to include hardware that has met the evaluation criteria contained in the National Cooperative Highway Research Program NCHRP Report 350 Recommended Procedures for the Safety Performance Evaluation of Highway Features and begins to detail the most current evaluation criteria contained under the Manual for Assessing Safety Hardware 2009 MASH For the most part roadside hardware tested and accepted under older guidelines that are no longer applicable has not been excluded in this edition AASHTO website AASHTO Guide for Design of Pavement Structures, 1993 American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials, 1993 Design related project level pavement management Economic evaluation of alternative pavement design strategies Reliability Pavement design procedures for new construction or reconstruction Design requirements Highway pavement structural design Low volume road design Pavement design procedures for rehabilitation of existing pavements Rehabilitation concepts Guides for field data collection Rehabilitation methods other than overlay Rehabilitation methods with overlays Mechanistic empirical design procedures Supplement to the AASHTO Guide for Design of Pavement Structures American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials, 1998 This Supplement includes alternative design procedures that can be used in place of or in conjunction with the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials AASHTO Guide for the Design of Pavement Structures Part II Section 3 2 Rigid Pavement Design and Section 3 3 Rigid Pavement Joint Design The Supplement contains the recommendations from National Cooperative Highway Research Program NCHRP Project 1 30 modified based on the results of the verification study conducted using the Long Term Pavement Performance LTPP database

A Guide for Achieving Flexibility in Highway Design, 2004 Context sensitive solutions CSS reflect the need to consider highway projects as more than just transportation facilities Depending on how highway projects are integrated into the community they can have far reaching impacts beyond their traffic or transportation function CSS is a comprehensive process that brings stakeholders together in a positive proactive environment to develop projects that not only meet transportation needs but also improve or enhance the community Achieving a flexible context sensitive design solution requires designers to fully understand the reasons behind the processes design values and design procedures that are used

This AASHTO Guide shows highway designers how to think flexibly how to recognize the many choices and options they have and how to arrive at the best solution for the particular situation or context It also strives to emphasize that flexible design does not necessarily entail a fundamentally new design process but that it can be integrated into the existing transportation culture This publication represents a major step toward institutionalizing CSS into state transportation departments and other agencies charged with transportation project development Guideline and Recommended Standard for Geofoam Applications in Highway Embankments Timothy D.
