Industrial Robots Programming J. Norberto Pires, 2007-04-03 Industrial Robots Programming focuses on designing and building robotic manufacturing cells and explores the capabilities of today's industrial equipment as well as the latest computer and software technologies. Special attention is given to the input devices and systems that create efficient human-machine interfaces and how they help non-technical personnel perform necessary programming control and supervision tasks. Drawing upon years of practical experience and using numerous examples and illustrative applications, J. Norberto Pires covers robotics programming as it applies to the current industrial robotic equipment including manipulators control systems and programming environments. Software interfaces that can be used to develop distributed industrial manufacturing cells and techniques which can be used to build interfaces between robots and computers. Real-world applications with examples designed and implemented recently in the lab. Industrial Robots Programming has been selected for indexing by Scopus. For more information about Industrial Robotics, please find the author's Industrial Robotics collection at the iTunesU University of Coimbra channel.

Architectures for Adaptive Software Systems Raffaella Mirandola, Ian Gorton, Christine Hofmeister, 2009-06-18 Much of a software architect's life is spent designing software systems to meet a set of quality requirements. General software quality attributes include scalability, security, performance, or reliability. Quality attribute requirements are part of an application's non-functional requirements which capture the many facets of how the functional requirements of an application are achieved. Understanding, modeling, and continually evaluating quality attributes throughout a project lifecycle are all complex engineering tasks which continue to challenge the software engineering scientific community. While we search for improved approaches, methods, formalisms, and tools that are usable in practice and can scale to large systems, the complexity of the applications that the software industry is challenged to build is ever increasing. Thus, as a research community, there is little opportunity for us to rest on our laurels as our innovations that address new aspects of system complexity must be deployed and validated. To this end, the 5th International Conference on the Quality of Software Architectures QoSA 2009 focused on architectures for adaptive software systems Modern software systems must often reconfigure their structure and behavior to respond to continuous changes in requirements and in their execution environment In these settings quality models are helpful at an architectural level to guide systematic model driven software development strategies by evaluating the impact of competing architectural choices Industrial Robotics ,2004
