Creolised Science Dorit Brixius, 2024-04-04

This rich deeply researched study offers the first comprehensive exploration of cross cultural plant knowledge in eighteenth century Mauritius. Using the concept of creolisation the process by which elements of different cultures are brought together to create entangled and evolving new entities Brixius examines the production of knowledge on an island without long established traditions of botany as understood by Europeans. Once foreign plants and knowledge arrived in Mauritius they were adapted to new environmental circumstances and a new socio cultural space. Brixius explores how French colonists, settlers, mediators, labourers and enslaved people experienced and shaped the island's botanical past centring the contributions of subaltern actors. By foregrounding neglected non European actors from both Africa and Asia within a melting pot of cultivation traditions from around the world she presents a truly global history of botanical knowledge.

What the Rest Think of the West Laura Nader, 2015-09-08

Over the past few centuries as Western civilization has enjoyed an expansive and flexible geographic domain, Westerners have observed other cultures with little interest in a return gaze. In turn, these other civilizations have been similarly disinclined when they have held sway. Clearly though, an external frame of reference outstrips introspection: we cannot see ourselves as others see us. Unprecedented in its scope, What the Rest Think of the West provides a rich historical look through the eyes of outsiders as they survey and scrutinize the politics, science, technology, religion, family practices and gender roles of civilizations not their own. The book emphasizes the broader figurative meaning of looking west in the scope of history. Focusing on four civilizations: Islamic, Japanese, Chinese and South Asian, Nader has collected observations made over centuries by scholars, diplomats, missionaries, travelers, merchants and students reflecting upon their own 'Wests'. These writings derive from a range of purposes and perspectives such as the seventh century Chinese Buddhist who goes west to India, the missionary from Baghdad who travels up the Volga in the tenth century and meets the Vikings, and the Egyptian imam who in 1826 is sent to Paris to study the French. The accounts variously express critique, adoration, admiration and fear, and are sometimes humorous, occasionally disturbing at times, controversial and always enlightening. With informative introductions to each of the selections, Laura Nader initiates conversations about the power of representational practices.

Transformations of Knowledge in Dutch Expansion Susanne Friedrich, Arndt Brendecke, Stefan Ehrenpreis, 2015-05-19

In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, objects, texts and people travelled around the world on board Dutch ships. The essays in this book explore how these circulations transformed knowledge in Asian and European societies. They concentrate on epistemic consequences in the fields of historiography, geography, natural history, religion and philosophy, as well as in everyday life. Emphasizing transformations, the volume reconstructs small semantic shifts of knowledge and tentative adjustments to new cultural contexts. It unfolds the often conflict-ridden, complex and largely global history of specific pieces of knowledge, as well as of generally shared contemporary understandings regarding what could or could not be considered true. The book contributes to current debates about how to conceptualize the unsettled epistemologies of the early modern world.
