Pacific Asia? Mel Gurtov, 2001-12-17 Most studies of Asia Pacific security are marked by pessimism and continuing belief in the virtues of a balance of power Pacific Asia goes against the grain by pointing to a number of positive developments especially economic in regional relationships the absence of an arms race the growth of multilateral groups and an emerging consensus on the importance of nonmilitary paths to national security Above all Mel Gurtov stresses a definition of security that focuses on basic human needs social justice and environmental protection The author disagrees with proponents of a China threat criticizes U S Cold War notions of security through forward based power and argues for new efforts at regional dialogue based on multilateral cooperation sensitivity to Asian nationalism and a role for Japan as a global civilian power

Defense White Paper, 1992 Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC). Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation (Organization), 1996 Linking Trade and Security Vinod K. Aggarwal, Kristi Govella, 2012-10-10 The connections between trade and security are hardly new Analysts and practitioners have clearly recognized this interrelationship since the mercantilist arguments of the 16th and 17th centuries Despite wishful economic liberal thinking that might prefer to separate the political from the economic it is widely recognized that trade and security are fundamentally interconnected in the foreign policy of states Over time as new forms of trade policy have come into being and the international security environment has evolved the nexus of these two spheres has grown more complex and scholars have struggled to understand their interconnection This edited volume addresses linkages between trade and security by examining the influence of security factors in driving trade policy measures and the corresponding implications of different types of trade arrangements for international security Ultimately the project shows that several elements traditional economic factors traditional security factors and human security factors can affect the development of trade agreements and unilateral policies and that trade policies may have both a direct and an indirect effect on traditional and human security The project focuses on Asia a region where economics is increasingly important but many security issues still linger unresolved as a primary setting to test trade linkage theories It also provides a comparative perspective through examination of how the EU and US have used their trade policies to achieve non economic goals and how these policies have influenced their security environment Case studies in this project cover key trade institutions and agreements including the World Trade Organization the Association of Southeast Asian Nations ASEAN Plus Three the East Asia Summit the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation forum the Shanghai Cooperation Organization and bilateral preferential trade agreements

Weichel, 1994-10-30 This important volume examines the vast potential of and critical need for cooperation among the neighboring states of the Pacific Rim From economic and security matters to cultural and environmental concerns the Pacific Century will require increased cross border education communication and cooperation which can be enhanced by regional organizations and agreements This work offers a compilation of new thinking from international political business and academic leaders on the challenges facing the Pacific Rim in the next century and proposes the emerging Pacific community as a model for global cooperation
