Redesigning Continuing Education in the Health Professions Institute of Medicine,Board on Health Care Services,Committee on Planning a Continuing Health Care Professional Education Institute,2010-03-12 Today in the United States the professional health workforce is not consistently prepared to provide high quality health care and assure patient safety even as the nation spends more per capita on health care than any other country The absence of a comprehensive and well integrated system of continuing education CE in the health professions is an important contributing factor to knowledge and performance deficiencies at the individual and system levels To be most effective health professionals at every stage of their careers must continue learning about advances in research and treatment in their fields and related fields in order to obtain and maintain up to date knowledge and skills in caring for their patients Many health professionals regularly undertake a variety of efforts to stay up to date but on a larger scale the nation s approach to CE for health professionals fails to support the professions in their efforts to achieve and maintain proficiency Redesigning Continuing Education in the Health Professions illustrates a vision for a better system through a comprehensive approach of continuing professional development and posits a framework upon which to develop a new more effective system The book also offers principles to guide the creation of a national continuing education institute Health Professionals' Education in the Age of Clinical Information Systems, Mobile Computing and Social Networks Aviv Shachak,Elizabeth Borycki,Shmuel P.

Reis, 2017-07-26 Health Professionals Education in the Age of Clinical Information Systems Mobile Computing and Social Networks addresses the challenges posed by information and communication technology to health professionals education and the lessons learned from field experiences and research This book is divided in three parts the changing landscape of information and communication technology in health care in which it discusses how information and communication technology is transforming health care and the implications of these changes for health professions education experiences from the field with real life examples of health professionals education in and for the digital era and evaluation of students and programs addressing the use of technology to assess learners as well as the complexity of evaluating programs to enhance competence in an information technology rich health care world Written by leading researchers from different parts of the world the book is a valuable source for educators and professionals who are active or wish to be part of the health informatics field Brings an in depth understanding and background on the challenges for education of the health professions brought by information and communication technology Provides real life examples on how technology is used in healthcare and how it can be used in education Presents valuable information in a visually appealing format with tables and figures

Federal Program Evaluations, 1982 Contains an inventory of evaluation reports produced by and for selected Federal agencies including GAO evaluation reports that relate to the programs of those agencies Evaluation of Continuing Education in the Health Professions Stephen Abrahamson, 2012-12-06 Phil R Manning Can you prove that continuing education really makes any difference Over the years educators concerned with continuing education CE for health professionals have either heard or voiced that question in one form or another more than once But because of the difficulty in measuring the specific effects of a given course program or conference the question has not been answered satisfactorily Since CE is costly since CE is now mandated in some states for re registration and since its worth has not been proven in formal evaluation research the pressure to evaluate remains strong The question can be partially answered by a more careful definition of continuing education particularly the goals to be achieved by CEo Another part of the answer depends on the development of a stronger commitment to evaluation of CE by its providers But a significant part of the answer might be provided through the improvement of methods used in evaluation of continuing education for health professionals To address this last concern the Development and Demonstration Center in Continuing Education for the Health Professions of the University of Southern California organized and conducted a meeting of academicians and practitioners in evaluation of continuing education During a three day period participants heard formal presentations by five invited speakers and then discussed the application of the state of the art of educational evaluation to problems of evaluation of continuing education for health professionals
