Dynamics of cyclic nucleotide signaling in neurons Pierre

Vincent, Nicholas C. Spitzer, 2015-09-16 Cyclic nucleotides control a number of neuronal properties including neuronal differentiation pathfinding regulation of excitability and synaptic transmission and control of gene expression Signaling events mediated by cAMP or cGMP are transient and take place within the complex 3 dimensional structure of the neuronal cell Signaling events happen on the time scale of seconds to minutes and the biological significance of the temporal dimension remains poorly understood Structural features of neurons dendritic spines and branches cell body nucleus axon as well as AKAPs and other scaffolding proteins that keep signaling enzymes together and form signaling microdomains are critical spatial determinants of signal integration Finally the types of enzymes involved in signal integration which are expressed as a number of different types and splice variants yield another dimension that determines signal integration properties Biosensor imaging provides direct temporal and spatial measurement of intracellular signals This novel approach together with more conventional methods such as biochemistry electrophysiology and modeling now provide a better understanding of the spatial and temporal features of cyclic nucleotide signal integration in living neurons This topic aims at providing a better understanding of how neurons are making sense of cyclic nucleotide signaling in living neurons

Thoreson, 2022-03-09 Extinction Learning from a Mechanistic and Systems Perspective Denise Manahan-Vaughan, Onur Gunturkun, Oliver T. Wolf, 2016-08-08 Throughout their lifetime animals learn to associate stimuli with their consequences Following memory acquisition and consolidation circumstances may arise that necessitate that initially learned behaviour is no longer relevant The ensuing process is called extinction learning and involves a novel and complex learning procedure that involves a large number of neural entities While the neural fundamentals of the initial acquisition are well studied our understanding of the behavioural and neural basis of extinction is still limited and derives mostly from rodent data acquired through fear conditioning paradigms Fear conditioning and extinction in rodents is a spectacularly successful paradigm within behavioral neuroscience However in recent years new approaches have been emerging that examine the mechanisms of extinction learning in different setting that also involve appetitive models a broader comparative perspective a focus on other brain systems an examination of hormonal factors and conditioning of immune responses Only a broader analysis of the neural fundamentals of extinction learning will finally uncover shared and distinct mechanisms that underlie extinction learning in different functional systems The papers compiled in this Research Topic offer new and valuable insights into the mechanisms and functional implementation of extinction learning at its different levels of complexity and form the basis for new concepts and research ideas in this field Women in
