

What is Assisted Reproduction?

Assisted reproduction refers to medical techniques and procedures used to help couples who have difficulty conceiving naturally to have a child.

These techniques may include hormonal stimulation to increase the production of eggs or sperm, in vitro fertilization, embryo transfer, and other medical interventions.

Assisted reproduction provides options for individuals and couples who wish to start a family but face reproductive challenges.

These techniques can help overcome fertility problems and provide hope to those who wish to have children.

The Assisted Human Reproduction Act Assisted Human Reproduction Agency of Canada, 2008 Regulating Creation Trudo Lemmens, Andrew Flavell Martin, Ian B. Lee, Cheryl Milne, 2017-01-23 In 2004 the Assisted Human Reproduction Act was passed by the Parliament of Canada Fully in force by 2007 the act was intended to safeguard and promote the health safety dignity and rights of Canadians However a 2010 Supreme Court of Canada decision ruled that key parts of the act were invalid Regulating Creation is a collection of essays built around the 2010 ruling Featuring contributions by Canadian and international scholars it offers a variety of perspectives on the role of law in dealing with the legal ethical and policy issues surrounding changing reproductive technologies In addition to the in depth analysis of the Canadian case the volume reflects on how other countries particularly the U S U K and New Zealand regulate these same issues Combining a detailed discussion of legal approaches with an in depth exploration of societal implications Regulating Creation deftly navigates the obstacles of legal policy amidst the rapid current of reproductive technological innovation

Assisted Human Reproduction Dani Singer, Myra Hunter, 2006-02-22 With contributions from Eric Blyth Ken Daniels Julia Feast Robert Lee Nina Martin Alexina McWhinnie Derek Morgan Clare Murray Sharon Pettie Claire Potter Jim Richards and Francoise Shenfield The separation of procreation from conception has broadened notions of parenthood and created novel dilemmas A woman may carry a foetus derived from gametes neither or only one of which came from her or her partner or she may carry a foetus created using in vitro fertilisation IVF with the purpose of handing it to two other parents one neither or both of whom may be genetically related to the prospective child Parents may consist of single sex couples only one of them genetically related to the child the prospective mother may be past her menopause and genetic parenthood after death is now achievable In a world increasingly reliant on medical science how can the argument that equates traditional with natural and novel with unnatural unethical be justified Should there be legislation which is notoriously slow to change in a field driven by dazzling new possibilities at ever faster rate particularly when restrictions differ from country to country so that those who can afford it travel elsewhere for their treatment of choice Whose rights are paramount the adults hoping to build a family or the prospective child ren s future well being On what basis can apparently competing rights be regulated or adjudicated and how and to what extent can these be enforced in practice Principles and Practice of Assisted Human Reproduction Robert Geoffrey Edwards, Steven A. Brody, 1995 A comprehensive text on the process of human fertilization and reproduction and the technique of in vitro fertilization and embryo transfer Includes coverage of assisted fertilization and the potential applicability of genetic diagnosis of the pre implantation embryo Assisted Reproduction Policy in Canada Dave Snow, 2018-09-20 The world has undergone a revolution in assisted reproduction as processes such as in vitro fertilization embryonic screening and surrogacy have become commonplace Yet when governments attempt to regulate this field they have not always been successful Canada is a case in point six years after the federal government created

comprehensive legislation the Supreme Court of Canada struck it down for violating provincial authority over health In Assisted Reproduction Policy in Canada Dave Snow provides the first historical exploration of Canadian assisted reproduction policy from the 1989 creation of the Royal Commission on New Reproductive Technologies to the present day Snow argues the federal government's policy failure can be traced to its contradictory policy framing which sent mixed messages about the purposes of the legislation In light of the federal government's diminished role Snow examines how other institutions have made policy in this emerging field Snow finds provincial governments medical organizations and even courts have engaged in considerable policymaking particularly with respect to surrogacy parentage and clinical intervention The result a complex field of overlapping and often conflicting policies paints a fascinating portrait of different political actors and institutions working together Accessibly written yet comprehensive in scope Assisted Reproduction Policy in Canada highlights how paying attention to multiple policymakers can improve our knowledge of health care regulation
