Annika Bergman Rosamond:

The Politics of Feminist Foreign Policy and Digital Diplomacy Karin Aggestam, Annika Bergman Rosamond, Elsa Hedling, 2024-07-26 The overarching aim of the book is to provide the first comprehensive account of Sweden's feminist foreign policy and its dissemination through digital diplomacy. In contrast to other scholarly studies of digital diplomacy that tend to view it as a technological and apolitical device for online diplomatic communication, this book examines the specific political dynamics of digital diplomacy. It posits that digital diplomacy is a highly political practice and form of communication. The book offers an in-depth examination of the interdependent relationship between digital diplomacy and feminist foreign policy with an empirical focus on Sweden. Additionally, it introduces a novel theoretical framework to analyse the political characteristics of digital diplomacy, emphasising the oscillation between antagonism and agonism at the intersection of feminist foreign policy and digital diplomacy. In sum, the book provides new theoretical and empirical knowledge of why, how, and in what ways power political dynamics are produced, sustained, and transformed within the contexts of feminist foreign policy and digital diplomacy. While the focus centres on Sweden, the authors contend that their novel approach to examining the political dynamics of digital diplomacy and feminist foreign policy applies to other country case studies as well. This is an open access book.

Non-Great Powers in International Politics Bergman-rosamon, 2014-03-27 This book develops a theoretical framework drawn from the English School of international theory to explore the contribution of non great powers within the international society of states. In doing so, the author asks whether the analysis of such actors as well as their distinct contributions to global justice and order can sustain the normative and analytical rigour of the English School.

Focussing on the Nordic states' conduct and conceptions of welfare internationalism, the responsibility to protect norm and humanitarian intervention as well as gendered and adjacent forms of internationalisms, this book provides important insights into the co constitutive relationship between specific agents and the wider sphere of international society. It sheds light on the crucial normative debate between order and justice in international politics and explains the specific roles of non great powers in sustaining nurturing and constituting international society through their internationalist foreign policies. This book will be of strong interest to students and scholars of international relations, international relations theory, particularly those with an interest in the English School and Nordic politics.

War, Ethics and Justice Annika Bergman-Rosamond, Mark Phythian, 2011-01-28 This edited volume addresses the key issues of ethics, war, and international relations in the post 9 11 world. There is a lively debate in contemporary international relations concerning the relationship between statist obligations to one's own political community and cosmopolitan duties to distant others. This volume contributes to this debate by investigating aspects of the ethics of national military and security and intelligence policies in the post 9 11 environment. The discursive transformation of national militaries into forces for good became normalized as the Cold War subsided. While the number of humanitarian military interventions and operations rose considerably in the immediate post Cold War period, the advent of the war on terror raised questions about exactly what we mean by ethical behaviour in terms of military and security policies. This volume interrogates this key question via a focus that is both distinctive and illuminating on national military ethics, femininities, masculinities and difference and intelligence ethics. The key objectives are to demonstrate the important linkages between areas of international relations that are all too often treated in isolation from one another and to investigate the growing tension between cosmopolitan and communitarian conceptions of intelligence and security and the use of armed force. This book will be of much interest to students of security studies, ethics, gender studies, intelligence studies and international relations in general. Mark Phythian is Professor of Politics in the Department of Politics and International Relations at the University of Leicester. He is the author or editor of ten books. Annika Bergman Rosamond is Senior Researcher at the Danish Institute for International Studies in Copenhagen. Feminist Policymaking in Turbulent Times Hannah Partis-Jennings, Clara Eroukhmanoff, 2024-05-31. Feminist Policymaking in Turbulent Times offers a unique and timely reflection of the critical debates around the institutionalisation of feminist and gender focused ideas and norms into policy. Many states and non governmental organisations are increasingly invested in feminist policymaking at the domestic and international levels. Yet this liberal feminist agenda is also vastly disputed by critical intersectional and decolonial voices on the one hand and by anti gender movements around the world on the other hand. Indeed while opposition to gender ideology is mounting from reactionary religious and secular forces, feminist policymaking is also being challenged in important ways from within. Thus this book situates feminist policymaking in a challenging and turbulent global context. This book explores feminist policymaking in multiple areas of policy, examining various gender focused programmes that states and international organisations have undertaken in the last decade, offering critical interventions and rethinking the relationship between feminism and policy. This book not only reflects on the advances of feminist policymaking globally but also critically assesses the intersectional challenges embedded within it and lying ahead. It moves the field forward by creating opportunities based on lived experiences for re imagining the transformative potential of the nexus between feminism and policymaking. Interdisciplinary in scope and bringing to the fore the voices of both academics and practitioners, this book is the product of an international collaboration forging links and dialogue that are increasingly necessary to question some of the exclusionary, militaristic and hierarchical assumptions of policymaking which is labelled as feminist. Feminist Policymaking in Turbulent Times will be of interest to all scholars, students and practitioners interested in the role of gender in policymaking and concerned with contestations around gender focused projects. The Oxford Handbook of Peaceful Change in International Relations T. Annika Bergman-Rosamond,2000 Perspectives on Security in the Arctic Area Annika Bergman Rosamond,2011 This report provides multiple perspectives on security in the Arctic area A key objective is to demonstrate that although the Arctic is the site of competing natural resources and land claims which are emerging from such phenomena as melting ice and new sea routes there are also many signs of fruitful regional cooperation and sound neighborly relations This thesis is supported by the high level of Arctic institutionalization that has evolved since the end of the Cold War Despite this some media outlets have routinely portrayed the Arctic as a possible site of inter state conflict Such accounts do not take sufficient account of the collaborative initiatives that take place within the Arctic Council the Nordic Council of Ministers and the European Union to mention a few The Arctic is situated within a complex web of multilateral and bilateral networks ranging from states to regional institutions What is more there is a great deal of emphasis on the involvement of indigenous and local communities in key decision making processes This is not to argue that there are no challenges to security and prosperity in the Arctic area but rather that we need to investigate these against the backdrop of the ongoing institutionalization of the High North Feministiska perspektiv på global politik Emil Edenborg,Sofie Tornhill,Cecilia Åse,Seema Arora-Jonsson,Annika Bergman Rosamond,Kristoffer Ekberg,Maria Eriksson Baaz,Catia Gregoratti,Jenny Gunnarsson Payne,Martin Hultman,Katharina Kehl,Elzbieta Bekiesza-Korolczuk,Paula Mählik,Elisabeth Olivius,Swati Parashar,Maria Stern,Fia Sundevall,Johan Svanberg,Yvonne Svanström,Aina Tollefson,Maria Wendt,Annick Wibben,Annica Young Kronsell,Linda Åhäll,2021 Klimatkris h gerpopulism systematiskt v ld och oj mlika livsvillkor v rlden ver Feministiska perspektiv p global politik visar att feministisk forskning ger oss verktyg f r att analysera dessa br nnande politiska problem
