Sea-Floor Spreading Lab

INTRODUCTION

In the late 1950s, considerable research was conducted to find a means of detecting large steel objects beneath the ocean surface (submarines). As a result, sensitive equipment was constructed that could detect very small changes in the earth's magnetic field - and could be carried in aircraft and used to survey large areas from the air. Surveys of the oceans, and in particular, areas on either side of the mid-ocean ridges, showed patterns of magnetic anomalies that were repeated (mirrored) on either side of the spreading ridge. The patterns were carefully plotted, mapped and analyzed. Scientists suggested that the earth's magnetic field periodically reversed direction (North became south, south became north) over many thousands of years. When the reversal occurred, it did so rapidly. As magma erupted along the divergent plate boundary, magnetic minerals within the cooling lava became aligned with the earth's magnetic field at the time of cooling. When the lava solidified, the pattern of magnetic alignment was locked into the rock. When the magnetic field changed direction again, the rock alignment remained as a record of the earth's magnetism at the time of cooling. Careful measurements showed that the patterns of North and South alignment matched exactly on either side of the spreading ridge as seen on the right. Additionally, it was noted that the ages of the rocks increased as distance from the ridge increased. New crust is being created along the divergent plate boundaries and forcing the older crust towards the coastlines. The observation of the oldest crust being far from the boundary and the newest crust being right along it supports the idea that the plates are diverging. These two pieces of evidence support the theory of sea-floor spreading.

PROCEDURE

As a class, we will create a model of the Mid-Atlantic Ridge. This model will demonstrate the motion of the plates at a divergent plate boundary as well as how the age of the sea-floor increases as you approach the coastlines. You will also observe the mirror image of magnetic polarity recorded in the rocks on either side of the ridge. Please refer to this demonstration and your understanding of Earth Science to complete the questions and problems on the following pages.

Seafloor Spreading Centers Peter A. Rona, Robert P. Lowell, 1980     Cascadia's Fault Jerry Thompson, 2012-03-10 A thrillingly rendered and level headed look at the Cascadia Subduction Zone the cause of over 30 monster earthquakes and the devastating natural disasters it promises There is a crack in the earth's crust that runs roughly 31 miles offshore approximately 683 miles from Northern California up through Vancouver Island off the coast of British Columbia The Cascadia Subduction Zone has generated massive earthquakes over and over again throughout geologic time at least 36 major events in the last 10 000 years This fault generates a monster earthquake about every 500 years And the monster is due to return at any time It could happen 200 years from now or it could be tonight The Cascadia Subduction Zone is virtually identical to the offshore fault that wrecked Sumatra in 2004 It will generate the same earthquake we saw in Sumatra at magnitude nine or higher sending crippling shockwaves across a far wider area than any California quake Slamming into Sacramento Portland Seattle Victoria and Vancouver it will send tidal waves to the shores of Australia New Zealand and Japan damaging the economies of the Pacific Rim countries and their trading partners for years to come In light of recent massive quakes in Haiti Chile and Mexico Cascadia's Fault not only tells the story of this potentially devastating earthquake and the tsunamis it will spawn it also warns us about an impending crisis almost unprecedented in modern history
