

Lens of Child Development - Anecdotal Observations

Observer's name:	Tricia Bonner
Child's name:	Sarah
Age:	17mths
Purpose/Video Name:	to observe Sarah's motor skills during outdoor play
Date of observation:	Sept 18, 2024
Time of observation:	10:00am
Setting / Context:	Child care centre outdoor play area

Notice the observation only includes what is seen and heard.

Observations:

As the children enter the play yard, Sarah heads towards the wooden pushcart. When she grabs the handle, the cart begins to tip towards her. She is able to steady herself before she falls and lifts the handle back into the upright position. She pushes the cart forward and bumps into the sandbox, she pulls it back a few inches and then pushes it forward, once again bumping into the sandbox. As she attempts to go forward one more time, she gives a little "growl" when the cart hits the sandbox. She stops and waits for a few seconds and then backs the cart up a bit further this time. Before she moves forward, she repositions the cart slightly to the left. She then moves forward without bumping into the sand box. As she maneuvers around the yard, she picks up numerous rocks. She looks at each one closely before adding it to her cart.

Uses of the words seems to and appears indicate this is a personal opinion

Interpretation: Inquiry

What does the child know? What is the child trying to do? What is the child going and/or interested in? What is the child trying to figure out? What problems are being solved?

Sarah appears to be developing her gross motor skills. She was able to rebalance herself before the pushcart fell over. She tried a few times to get around the sandbox and after the third attempt she seems to be getting frustrated. (she growls when the cart hits the sandbox). Instead of giving up, Sarah looks as if she is thinking about how to get the cart around the sandbox. (she stops and waits for a few seconds). On her final attempt she is able to get the cart around the sandbox. Again, demonstrating her gross motor skills as she repositions the cart without falling. She also appears to have an interest in collecting the rocks.
