Campaigning Online Bruce Bimber, Richard Davis, 2003-09-11 After a self-assured John F Kennedy bested a visibly shaky Richard Nixon in their famous 1960 debates political television it was said would henceforth determine elections Today many claim the Internet will be the latest medium to revolutionize electoral politics Candidates invest heavily in web and email campaigns to reach prospective voters as well as to communicate with journalists potential donors and political activists Do these efforts influence voters expand democracy increase the coverage of political issues or mobilize a shrinking and apathetic electorate Campaigning Online answers these questions by looking at how candidates present themselves online and how voters respond to their efforts including whether voters learn from candidates websites and whether voters' views are affected by what they see Although the Internet will not lead to a revolution in democracy it will Bimber and Davis argue have consequences reinforcing messages mobilizing activists and strengthening partisans' views Reporting on a wealth of new data drawn from national and state wide surveys laboratory experiments interviews with campaign staff and analysis of web sites themselves Campaigning Online draws the most complete picture of the role of campaign websites in American elections to date

Spoiling for a Fight Micah L. Sifry, 2013-01-11 More Americans now identify as political independents than as either Democrats or Republicans Tired of the two party gridlock the pandering and the lack of vision they've turned in increasing numbers to independent and third party candidates In 1998 for the first time in decades a third party candidate who was not a refugee from one of the two major parties Jesse Ventura won election to state wide office as the governor of Minnesota In 2000 the public was riveted by the Reform Party's implosion over Patrick Buchanan's presidential candidacy and by Ralph Nader's Green Party run which infuriated many Democrats but energized hundreds of thousands of disaffected voters in stadium sized super rallies What are the prospects for new third party efforts Combining the close in personal reporting and learned analysis one can only get by covering this beat for years Micah L Sifry's Spoiling for a Fight exposes both the unfair obstacles and the viable opportunities facing today's leading independent parties Third party candidates continue to be denied a fighting chance by discriminatory ballot access unequal campaign financing winner take all races and derisive media coverage Yet after years of grassroots organizing third parties are making major inroads At the local level efforts like Chicago's New Party and New York's Working Families Party have upset urban political machines while gaining positions on county councils and school boards Third party activists are true believers in democracy and if America's closed two party system is ever to be reformed it will be thanks to their efforts
