Grand Strategies of the Left Van Jackson, 2023-11-02 Why are progressives often critical of US foreign policy and the national security state What would a statecraft that pulls ideas from the American left look like Grand Strategies of the Left brings the progressive worldview into conversation with security studies and foreign policy practice It argues that American progressives think durable security will only come by prioritizing the interconnected conditions of peace democracy and equality By conceiving of grand strategy as worldmaking progressives see multiple ways of using foreign policy to make a more just and stable world US statecraft including defense policy should be retooled not for

Trump, Congress and the 2018 Defence Budget: A Primer for Australia Ashley Townshend, Dougal Robinson, Brendan Thomas-Noone, 2017-09-22 During the 2016 presidential campaign Donald Trump complained that the United States military is a disaster and promised to make it so big so powerful so strong that nobody absolutely nobody is gonna mess with us 1 So far the president has not delivered on his rhetoric Although Trump has requested additional funding for defence the magnitude of the increase falls well short of his promises Republican defence hawks are advocating for additional resources above the president's request But a combination of ongoing spending caps imposed by the Budget Control Act BCA and political gridlock in Washington will prevent Congress from passing more than a modest increase in defence spending for 2018 Washington's inability to return the defence budget to pre BCA levels is having a serious impact on America's global strategic presence As Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff General Joseph Dunford warned in June Without sustained sufficient and predictable funding I assess that within five years we will lose our ability to project power the basis of how we defend the homeland advance US interests and meet our alliance commitments 2 His comment was more than a bureaucratic bid for extra funding Ongoing conflicts in the Middle East and growing operational demands in Europe and Asia are taxing the military's ability to procure train repair and deploy its forces at sustainable levels The US military cannot continue to modernise and fix these military readiness problems without greater political certainty and a commitment to higher spending While there is no solution in sight to the defence budget crisis there are signs that America's strategic presence in Indo Pacific Asia will be prioritised in this budget cycle Congress has emphasised the need to strengthen regional capabilities in response to Chinese and North Korean challenges including by increasing cooperation with allies and bolstering extended deterrence Like the White House Congress is allocating resources to some readiness issues though not at levels that will satisfy the Pentagon as well as supporting advancements in space cyber electronic warfare and ballistic missile systems Australia should welcome this sustained military engagement in the Indo Pacific but remain cautious about Washington's ability to reverse the impact of budget uncertainty on the American armed forces
