Communication Research ,1984 The International Encyclopedia of Education ,1989 Covariance Structure Models
J. Scott Long,1983-09 While many readers may be unfamiliar with the full complexity of the covariance structure model many may have mastered at least one of its two components each of which is a powerful and well known statistical technique in its own right The first is the confirmatory factor model frequently used in psychometrics the second the structural equation model is familiar to econometricians The discussion in this volume will be particularly useful for estimating models with equality constraints and correlated errors across some but not all equations The final chapter includes a guide to appropriate software packages Climate Finance as an Instrument to Promote the Green Growth in Developing Countries Antonio A. Romano,Giuseppe Scandurra,Alfonso Carfora,Monica Ronghi,2017-09-07 This book analyses the effectiveness of climate finance as political instrument to reduce the effect of anthropogenic activities on climate change and promote the green growth in developing countries The book highlights that close attention should also be paid to the analysis of political contexts in a broad sense Particularly focusing on the international negotiations process that enables the direction of funds toward specific needs and priorities and the issue of access to electricity For example the difficulties that developing countries face when trying to improve their green economic development without access to carbon remains a matter of the utmost importance and urgency for many developing countries that lack significant aid from developed countries This book will be of interest to a wide body of academics and practitioners in climate change and energy policies Moreover this project is a valid instrument for students in energy policies and climate programs Work and occupations Sage Publications, inc,Sage full-text collections (Online service),1987
