3. The powers of the Constitution that are specifically granted to the branches of government or to officeholders are called expressed constitutional powers.

- Identify two expressed powers of the president.
- Identify two expressed powers of the vice president.
- Identify two expressed powers of Congress.

4. According to the principle of checks and balances, each branch of the government must have control over the other branches. Look at the first three articles of the Constitution and identify one of each type of checks and balances.

- List a power that the executive branch has over the legislative branch.

- List a power that the executive branch holds over the judicial branch.

- List a power that the legislative branch holds over the executive branch.

- List a power that the legislative branch holds over the judicial branch.

5. According to Article I of the Constitution, who has the power to declare war?

6. What power does the Constitution give the president in the area of war?

The Constitution requires a simple majority for some actions and a supermajority for others. A simple majority means more than half, while supermajority requirements can involve a 2/3 majority or a 3/4 majority. Most elections in the United States require a plurality, or the most votes, but not necessarily a majority.

- What bodies have the power to override a presidential veto?
 - What margin is required to override a presidential veto?
 - Where in the Constitution is the veto power described?

- What body has the power to ratify treaties?
 - What margin is required to ratify treaties?
 - Where in the Constitution is the ratification power described?
