Maybe you're curious about what it might be like to work in a school or some form of health care together with your best friend. Maybe you've already done an assessment test and are looking for or have already started the course that best suits you. Or maybe you have a family member who you think would benefit from sessions with a dog team but want to know a little more before you propose it. The authors have based the contents of this book on the situation in Sweden and cover everything from why dogs function so well with people who are in need of support to how to select a suitable dog for the job. They give you tips on how to start training basic skills, finding the course that suits you best and what you should think about when you have a certified social working dog. Thirteen dog handlers tell their stories about a day at work with their best friend and colleague. The book also contains quotes from employers who have invited a dog team into their workplace. Animal Assisted Interventions Professionals Embrace the Power of the Dog is simply a book that educates as well as moves you. Professional Applications of Animal Assisted Interventions Melissa Y. Winkle, 2013-07-24 The human-animal bond has therapeutic value regardless of the nature of the interaction. Recently the work has begun to diverge into two distinct directions. First many organizations continue to support volunteer visiting teams in a variety of community settings however a secondary breed of programs are emerging as more healthcare, social service and educational practitioners carry the responsibility to ensure professional level standards of practice that blend seamlessly with each disciplines practice framework. The patient, client and student goals are formal and practiced in a discipline specific modality. Dogwood Doga is not meant to be a cookie cutter book for activities, rather it is meant to educate professionals about how to think about intervention or educational plans, activity and biomechanical analysis, modifications and safety for human and dog. This book caters to those who use dogs in discipline specific sessions. DOGWOOD DOGA is the first book in a series that offers an occupational therapist's perspective on having a canine co-therapist or co-educator work with clients, patients or students to reach functional goals including health maintenance, neuromusculoskeletal and motor skills, sensory and cognitive functions, communication and interaction skills and more. The book includes pictured demonstrations, instructions, activity analysis and modification ideas. Each activity in DOGWOOD DOGA also offers information about incorporating the dog and intermediate dog training requirements. It is recommended that users have experience with biomechanics, yoga and have dogs with solid obedience and interaction skills.

collection was pulled together to celebrate Eva's life and her legacy. While it is a tribute to her, it is filled with animal assisted therapy and animal assisted education activities that catered to Eva whose abilities outweighed her diagnoses: mitochondrial metabolism disorder, quadriplegic cerebral palsy, seizures, closed dislocations of the hip, cortical visual impairment, strabismus, spasticity, feeding tubes and communication disorder. Eva appeared to have many challenges, but this book illustrates a glimpse into her occupational therapy sessions which were based on the human-animal bond, the key motivating factor in her sessions which resulted in measurable functional progress and quality of life. This book contains activities that are useful for just about anyone in the interdisciplinary team who works with a person with similar abilities. Readers are guided through activities step by step to identify therapeutic value, supplies needed, precautions and modifications to make activities more or less difficult. In addition, words of wisdom from the dog's point of view are provided so that the dog receives prerequisite training and introductions to environments, people and activities. The baseline information on ethics, standards of practice and screening people and dogs for participation is included. This title, Eva's Favorites, and 100% of the proceeds have been gifted to the Little Mustard Seed Trust Fund so we celebrate Eva's life with a sample of letters from some of her students, friends and family.

Animal-Assisted Psychotherapy Nancy Parish-Plass, 2013-07-15

The integration of animals into the therapy setting by psychotherapists has been a growing trend. Psychological problems treated include emotional and behavioral problems, attachment issues, trauma and developmental disorders. An influential 1970s survey suggests that over 20 percent of therapists in the psychotherapy division of the American Psychological Association incorporated animals into their treatment in some fashion. Anecdotal evidence suggests that the number is much higher today. Since Yeshiva University psychologist Boris Levinson popularized the involvement of animals in psychotherapy in the 1960s, Israel has come to be perhaps the most advanced country in the world in the area of animal assisted psychotherapy (AAP). This is true especially in the areas of academic training programs, theory building and clinical practice. Great effort has been put into understanding the mechanisms behind AAP, as well as into developing ethical guidelines that take into account the therapist's responsibility toward both client and animal. This book exposes the world to the theory and practice of AAP as conceived and used in Israel. It emphasizes evidence based and clinically sound applications with psychotherapeutic goals as differentiated from other animal assisted interventions such as AAE (animal assisted education) and AAA (animal assisted activities) which may have education or skills oriented goals. Not just anyone with a dog can call him or herself an animal assisted therapist. This volume demonstrates not only the promise of animal assisted psychotherapeutic approaches but also some of the challenges the field still needs to overcome to gain widespread legitimacy.
