Advances In Meat Research Collagen As A Food:

Meat Science and Applications Y. H. Hui, Wai-Kit Nip, Robert Rogers, 2001-07-27 Meat Science and Applications compiles the most recent science technology and applications of meat products by products and meat processing. It details worker safety, waste management, slaughtering, carcass evaluation, meat safety, and animal handling issues from an international perspective. Essential concepts are illustrated with practical examples.

Advances in Meat Research A.M. Pearson, T.R. Dutson, 2012-12-06 The Advances in Meat Research series has arisen from a perceived need for a comprehensive coverage of certain topics that are pertinent to meat and meat products. We the editors have made the decision to concentrate on a series of related topics that are deemed to be important to an understanding of meat both fresh and processed. It is our sincere hope that by focusing upon areas related to meat science that researchers who contribute to this volume can not only update those involved in academia and industry but also promulgate facts that may lead to solutions of meat industry problems and aid in improving the efficiency of various associated industrial processes. We have chosen to devote Volume 1 to electrical stimulation in view of the widespread interest in its meat industry applications. Although the classical study by A. Harsham and Fred Deatherage was published in 1951 it was not accepted by the meat industry owing to a number of factors that are discussed in the text. These investigators did however lay the groundwork for modern electrical stimulation of carcasses by their detailed studies on the effects of varying current, voltage, frequency, wave forms and time. The basic information provided by these workers saved a great amount of experimentation by those who subsequently rediscovered electrical stimulation.

Muscle Foods Burdette C. Breidenstein, Donald M. Kinsman, Anthony W. Kotula, 2013-03-09 Traditionally in the food industry there has been a distinction made among meat, poultry, seafood, and game. Meat has historically been defined as the edible flesh of animals. This basically referred only to the red meats, namely, beef, lamb, pork, and veal, including both fresh and processed products, as well as variety or glandular meats. It has been recognized more recently that all foods derived from muscle or muscle foods have basically the same or similar characteristics in physical and chemical properties. Therefore, it is logical to examine and consider all muscle foods under one cover. This book, therefore, is an attempt to address the various attributes of red meat, poultry, fish, and game under the single heading of muscle foods and to note any differences where they might occur. It is of interest that of the 10 top U.S. meat companies in 1990, 8 of them were dealing with poultry as well as red meats, and that 4 of the 10 were also involved with seafoods. This lends impetus to the inclusion of all three in a book such as this. Furthermore, the rapid increase in consumption of poultry meat to approximately 30 kg (65 pounds) per capita and seafoods to 7 kg (16 pounds) per capita compared to beef at 34 kg (75 pounds) and pork at 30 kg (65 pounds) whereas veal and lamb mutton represent only 0.
