The Partisan Next Door Ethan C. Busby, Adam J. Howat, Jacob E. Rothschild, Richard M. Shafranek, 2021-09-29 In the United States politics has become tribal and personalized The influence of partisan divisions has extended beyond the political realm into everyday life affecting relationships and workplaces as well as the ballot box To help explain this trend we examine the stereotypes Americans have of ordinary Democrats and Republicans Using data from surveys experiments and Americans own words we explore the content of partisan stereotypes and find that they come in three main flavors parties as their own tribes coalitions of other tribes or vehicles for political issues These different stereotypes influence partisan conflict people who hold trait based stereotypes tend to display the highest levels of polarization while holding issue based stereotypes decreases polarization This finding suggests that reducing partisan conflict does not require downplaying partisan divisions but shifting the focus to political priorities rather than identity a turn to what we call responsible partisanship

Compromised Seamus Bruner, 2018-08-16 If you ask most Americans what they think about the FBI they would tell you it s far and away the government agency they trust the most The Bureau has for decades sold an image of itself as efficient professional unbiased and untouchable by corruption That portrait is a sham Seamus Bruner and the Government Accountability Institute have spent years cataloging the widespread conflict of interests of the D C political class They have found massive self enrichment and political bias at the highest levels of government including the Justice
