Entrepreneurship for the Rest of Us Paul B. Brown, 2016-11-03 Today when the competition technology and the economy are evolving faster than ever before organizations and the people like us who work in them need a proven approach to help us adapt and succeed The key according to Paul B Brown is to think like an entrepreneur no matter what your position or industry What works for the most successful entrepreneurs will work for us Brown argues whether we want to stay employed working for someone else or are thinking of going off on our own Based on extensive research Entrepreneurship for the Rest of Us reveals the best practices of the most successful entrepreneurs those who are adept at continually innovating and seeing opportunity where others do not They do that by following a rigid approach For example They never start with a new idea but by trying to solve a market need Financing is an afterthought They get started with the resources at hand not only does that allow them to move quickly if things don't work out they are not out much Perfect is the enemy of good it is much more important to get out into the marketplace with a prototype than to keep fiddling with what you have In short the entrepreneurial mindset is a protection against economic uncertainty and Brown's goal is to spread that thinking to individuals and large organizations alike Though of course we won't all start or run our own companies we need to learn to think like entrepreneurs so that when uncertainty hits as it will again and again individuals and companies will be better prepared to not only survive but win The Ethics of Entrepreneurship Education Kyle Jensen, 2024-08-27

Entrepreneurship in Africa Ven Sriram, David Lingelbach, Tigineh Mersha, Franklyn Manu, 2020-11-16 It is now widely recognized that in regions like Africa for economic and other reasons the public sector has had to disengage and divest from many areas of the economy and allow private enterprise especially scalable start ups and new ventures to enter and flourish if economic development and employment are to grow There is however a training and education gap since entrepreneurship is rarely taught formally at African universities and when it is it is often approached from a Western perspective which may not be appropriate given that African environments are significantly different from most Western ones in terms of economic infrastructure and political considerations This book allows readers to understand the African entrepreneurial context by guiding them through the principal stages in the life of a new venture and offers approaches both Western and indigenous that can inform their entrepreneurial actions It concludes by examining some specialized topics including female youth and social entrepreneurship as well as real estate and technology Exercises throughout the book will enable readers to evaluate their motivations and preparedness for entrepreneurship and learn how to communicate a new venture's key features to potential stakeholders By focusing on the distinctive features of entrepreneurship in the African context and taking a conversational tone this is an informative and practical text that will be useful for students of Global Entrepreneurship and Business as well as actual and prospective entrepreneurs in the private non profit and public sectors
