being particularly well documented Over the past three decades the use of herbal medicine preparations or formulations derived from these materials has increased rapidly worldwide Currently the curative effects of medicinal plants are becoming more widely discussed for example in Europe and North America especially as they relate to preventive remedies The application of herbal medicine has been continuously increasing as an element of adjuvant therapies and remains important in many traditional and indigenous medical systems However the evidence on the beneficial therapeutic effects and underlying mechanism of action of herbal medicine among people with CVD and CVD risk factors is still inconclusive This Research Topic is the second in the series and the goal is to provide a forum to advance research on the efficacy and safety of herbal medicine for CVD and CVD risk factors as well as the pharmacological effects and possible underlying mechanisms By focusing and testing on these areas we can provide further evidence for the potential use of herbal medicine for treating CVD and CVD risk factors and therefore improving the prognosis of patients We invite previous authors as well as new contributors to submit manuscripts The subtopics to be covered within this issue are listed below Clinical studies evaluating the evidence of the potential usefulness of herbal medicine in managing CVD and CVD risk factors Basic original research on the underlying mechanisms of herbal medicines in managing CVD and CVD risk factors Reviews or meta analysis on the efficacy of herbal medicine on CVD and CVD risk factors and their underlying mechanisms Protocols of clinical research aiming to test the potential therapeutic effect of herbal medicine on CVD and CVD risk factors Note 1 CVD and CVD risk factors include heart disease stroke pulmonary arterial hypertension hematological disorders atherosclerosis hypertension dyslipidemia diabetes obesity etc 2 For manuscripts dealing with plant extracts or other natural substances compounds the composition and the stability of the study material must be described in sufficient detail In particular for extracts chromatograms with the characterization of the dominating compound s are requested The level of purity must be proven and included All the manuscripts submitted to the collection will need to fully comply with the Four Pillars of Best Practice in Ethnopharmacology you can freely download the full version here 3 You need to check your MS using <https://gaonline.org> best practice and include a PDF in your submissions with the relevant tables of the tool filled 1 and 2a

Integrative Geriatric Medicine Mikhail Kogan, 2017-11-24 Integrative geriatrics is a new field of medicine that advocates for a whole person patient centered primarily non pharmacological approach to medical care of the elderly Most current geriatric practices overprescribe medications and procedures and underutilize non pharmacological low cost high touch methods Patients however often show reluctance towards these standard practices as the interventions they rely upon are often invasive The practice of integrative geriatrics is rooted in lifestyle interventions such as nutrition movement therapies and mind body and spirituality approaches that allow patients to have different path to their healthcare one that utilizes pharmaceuticals and invasive procedures only when safer integrative approaches are not available or not effective This first definitive textbook of this new field presents detailed evidence based information for all healthcare providers and advocates who work with geriatric population It is intended not only for providers in outpatient settings but also to those who work in nursing homes assisted and independent living facilities and senior community centers In addition Integrative Geriatric Medicine will provide valuable information for leaders and politicians who are involved with implementing policies and procedures for care of elderly patients looking for safer less costly and more patient centered approaches Geriatric Medicine Christine K. Cassel, Rosanne Leipzig, Harvey Jay Cohen, Eric B. Larson, Diane E. Meier, 2006-05-29 Since the publication of the third edition of Geriatric Medicine extraordinary advances have occurred in the science of aging and the potential for biomedical research to give us answers to many if not most of the age related disorders that threaten the quality of life in older years At the most basic level the successful mapping of the human genome was declared complete in the fall of 2000 Understanding the map of the human genome is as important as understanding the map of genomes of important laboratory species ranging from the microscopic worms and fruit flies used in most classic genetic studies to rodents such as laboratory mice and eventually to primates on which much of the research on the aging human brain is done The genetic maps of all of these species including our own does not answer clinical questions but it does open the door to dramatic rapid and efficient answers to questions about the genetic polymorphisms related to diseases in humans The telomerase story also unfolded since the third edition Telomerase is an enzyme responsible for maintaining the telomeres the redundant DNA portions at the end of chromosomes whose shortening seems to be linked directly to cell senescence apoptosis and the control over cell death which at the level of the individual cell seems to be linked to the decline of organ function and eventually aging and death within the organism
