A concise introduction to cyborg theory that examines the way in which technology is situated political and embodied. This introduction to cyborg theory provides a critical vantage point for analyzing the claims around emerging technologies like automation robots and AI. Cyborg analyzes and reframes popular and scholarly conversations about cyborgs from the perspective of feminist cyborg theory. Drawing on their combined decades of training, teaching and research in the social sciences, design and engineering education, Laura Forlano and Danya Glabau introduce an approach called critical cyborg literacy. Critical cyborg literacy foregrounds power dynamics and pays attention to the ways that social and cultural factors such as gender, race and disability shape how technology is imagined, developed, used and resisted. Forlano and Glabau offer critical cyborg literacy as a way of thinking through questions about the relationship between humanity and technology in areas such as engineering and computing, art and design, and health care and medicine, as well as the social sciences and humanities. Cyborg examines whether modern technologies make us all cyborgs if we consider, for instance, the fact that we use daily technologies at work, have technologies embedded into our bodies in health care applications, or use technology to critically explore possibilities as artists, designers, activists and creators. Lastly, Cyborg offers perspectives from critical race, feminist and disability thinkers to help chart a path forward for cyborg theory in the twenty-first century.

Food futures: ethics, science and culture I. Anna S. Olsson, Sofia M. Araújo, M. Fátima Vieira, 2023-07-31

Food is at the centre of human existence. We eat every day not only to satisfy our physical needs but also as part of cultural and social interaction. Food choices and markets shape the agricultural landscape and the cities we live in. Whereas what we choose to eat and feed our family is part of who we are, a growing number of actors compete to influence our food habits through marketing strategies and nutritional advice. And ethical considerations are coupled with every choice over food, whether related to production, distribution, consumption, food waste policy, in general, marketing or advice. Given the variety of implications, the food problem entails the construction of an inclusive society. It must redirect the concerns about food in the present to the imagination of future alternatives. The search for innovative solutions calls for multidisciplinary critical enquiry and utopian thinking will be instrumental in that regard. This book brings together work by scholars in a wide range of disciplines addressing many different topics related to food futures. Topics covered include food and literature, food waste, food communication, food policy, corporate social responsibility and public procurement in food supply, responsible research and innovation in food production, as well as sustainability and animal ethics and welfare.
