Bathed In Blue A Family Journey With Bipolar Depression:

Bathed in Blue Rona Ross, 2011-06-01 Bathed in Blue Richly Informative Ms Ross does not only give us a resourceful reference for bipolar disorder but also a fascinating narrative of her daughter's suicidal process. By Dr Paul Wong Clinical Psychologist bipolar affective disorder is not going away and the sufferers at risk of suicide are more than 15 times at risk to succeed at taking their own lives. Jennifer's story highlights that the early diagnosis and subsequent treatment for bipolar disorder needs to be improved. Jennifer asked me to be her voice to tell her story. The stigma of mental illness and high suicide rates renders sufferers invisible and after suicide mute. Their stories buried or cremated with them. I describe our difficulties to access help for Jennifer in acute and chronic situations in two different countries. Jennifer describes her situation in the wards in the community and her struggle to be heard by her psychiatrist and her thoughts on suicide, her treatment and her life. After her fourth episode Jennifer sat down with me and asked why it was so hard to get the help she needed. We decided together to write about it. Hence her personal writings. I hope by writing this book that the illness can be better understood by professionals and the community. I want the treatment to improve so much that the lives of chronic sufferers become more worth living and that suicide is taken seriously in sufferers with bipolar disorder and is no longer a high risk. About the Author When Rona was twelve her father was committed to a locked ward in the local psychiatric hospital. A short time later one of her aunts was also detained in the same hospital. Happily both relatives recovered. At seventeen Rona trained and worked as a Registered General Nurse in Scotland. Her training included experience in this same psychiatric hospital where she worked on the same high security locked ward where her father was committed. She also worked in Dr Naylor's famous metabolic unit for sufferers of manic depression. Two decades later she visited her seventeen year old daughter Jennifer who was committed in a locked ward under section 28 of The Mental Health Act of 1984 over a six year period. Therefore mental illness is not a stranger to her. Her two children were brought up in Hong Kong and both went to university in Britain. She did her degree in Humanities in Hong Kong and at the same time she trained as a counsellor with two Non Government Organizations. She has worked as a counsellor since 1988. As a young student she won prizes for writing at school. She also encouraged Jennifer to write about her experiences as a manic depression sufferer and this book is the result of that. Rona became Jennifer's voice for this book which is written for all those who want to further understand bipolar disorder. She wants people to know the realities about mental illness and to promote understanding and help break down the stigma which surrounds mental illness.

The Maine Organic Farmer & Gardener, 1996 Time, 1999 School Library Journal, 2000 Mommy, I'm Still in Here Kate McLaughlin, 2008-03-15 Vivid account of a family living with serious mental illness and the personal and spiritual growth spawned by those events Finding Balance Jeff Krukar, Katie Gutierrez, 2015-09-20 Everyone has good days and bad days but for seventeen year old Alex Magana the shifts between despair and elation are dramatic and they impact every area of his life. For years Alex has been misdiagnosed with depression.

In fact he has bipolar disorder and the correct diagnosis is only the beginning of his journey Along with his parents Alex must navigate the complex physical and emotional effects of using psychotropic medication eventually discovering that medication is only one component of a lifelong comprehensive treatment plan Based on dozens of intensive interviews with parents and clinicians Finding Balance shares the challenges and triumphs of using medication to help treat a significant psychiatric disorder as well as provides invaluable education for families on similar roads

A Double-Edged Life Jill Gebhart Campbell,2009-08-17 Jill Gebhart Campbells passion for poetry writing and drawing prompted her to write this book utilizing these creative genres in order to portray her bipolar illness in a more personal way It is also a reflection of how the devastating effects of bipolar disorder shaped her life The authors story is about a young womans odyssey of triumph and sorrow and her journey to find herself again Before her diagnosis she was a beautiful compassionate young woman who excelled in both athletics and academics After her diagnosis she gained more than 120 pounds due to health issues sick children psychiatric hospitalizations and unsuitable medications She became depressed self consumed and bitter The debilitating depression and hauntingly real hallucinations forever impacted the way she sees life and how life sees her Her faith in God proved to be her ultimate anchor through her heart wrenching circumstances After admission to solitary confinement due to hallucinations she experienced an even more profound depression The white walls barred windows cold cement floors and white bedding only exacerbated my feelings of isolation and left me swirling downward in an even deeper depression However the Lords unconditional love has allowed her to walk on the bright side once again She overcame all the odds to become the woman she longed to be She has attained the serenity one reaches when theyve been to the very end beyond hope yet made it back
