Battles Over Nature Vasant K. Saberwal, Mahesh Rangarajan, 2005 Contesting Conservation Saloni Gupta, 2018-02-03 This book explores today s changing intellectual climate wherein understanding politics at different levels from global to local is considered mandatory in order to appraise the outcome of nature conservation interventions By carefully examining two such processes the ban on shahtoosh trade and the National Afforestation Programme in the Indian state of Jammu and Kashmir the book reveals how these processes are influenced by politics at different levels from their introduction at the macro level to their implementation at the micro level and in turn become coloured by the agendas and interests of the various stakeholders involved Throughout the book one priority is to give a voice to the poor resource users who have been traditionally dependent on wildlife and forest resources for mere subsistence Yet these same people are who bear the brunt of nature conservation costs rather than those actors who are responsible for the most serious violations in pursuit of greater profits Contemporary Environmental Sociology is chiefly characterised by its focus on power relations in resource conservation and management In political ecology literature too especially after recognising the paradoxes and limitations of approaches such as sustainable development sustainable livelihoods and community based natural resource management there is a growing concern for critical analyses of multi level politics in connection with nature conservation The purpose of the book is not to challenge the gravity of environmental concerns but to question the dominance of conservation interests over the subsistence needs of local communities and to strike a balance between environmental and social justice It argues that unless and until more just accountability for the affected populations is ensured conservation policies are unlikely to meet the goals of sustainable resource management Given its critical engagement with human nature conflicts in Jammu and Kashmir the book offers a unique resource for students and scholars of Environmental Sociology Political Ecology Natural Resources Management Conflict Studies and Human Rights Studies Wildlife Politics Bruce Rocheleau, 2017-03-30 An analysis of forces affecting wildlife politics worldwide covering topics such as overexploitation hunting ecotourism and trafficking The Book Review ,2003 Making Conservation Work Ghazala Shahabuddin, Mahesh Rangarajan, 2007 Mostly revised version of papers presented at the National Seminar Making Conservation Work Attempting Solutions to Biodiversity Loss in India held at New Delhi in March 2005 Democratizing Nature Ashwini Chhatre, Vasant K. Saberwal, 2006 Publisher description Nomadic Peoples ,2009 Environment & Planning ,2010 Biodiversity and Conservation Richard J. Ladle, 2009 Although biodiversity is a relatively new coinage scientists have been studying the subject it describes long before the word's first appearance in the language in the mid 1980s. In 1973 for instance the UK Systematics Association held a symposium on The Changing Flora and Fauna of Britain which concluded that not enough attention was being paid to the conservation of rarities a conclusion also reached said the symposium at a meeting of the Linnaean Society some forty years earlier. By 1980 the Global 2000 Report to the President published by the US Council on Environmental Quality starkly warned of a diminution of up to one fifth of all species by the turn of the century and there is now a growing consensus that the world faces a biodiversity crisis a potentially catastrophic global loss of genetic ecosystem and most obviously species diversity. Indeed especially since the UN Convention on Biological Diversity was promulgated in Rio de Janeiro in 1992 conserving biodiversity has become the principal focus of the global conservation movement. Indeed the study of the origins maintenance and protection of diversity has become perhaps the most vibrant offshoot of ecology and conservation studies. It is increasingly taught and studied in universities and other research institutions around the world. Addressing the need for an authoritative reference work to make sense of this rapidly growing subject and its ever more complex and multidisciplinary corpus of scholarly literature Biodiversity and Conservation is a new title in the Routledge series Critical Concepts in the Environment Edited by Richard Ladle of Oxford University's Centre for the Environment this new Major Work brings together in five volumes the foundational and the very best cutting edge scholarship to provide a synoptic view of all the key issues and current debates.

Rather than giving up on parks that are foundering ways must be found to strengthen them and Making Parks Work offers a vital contribution to that effort. Focusing on the good news success stories from the front lines and what lessons can be taken from those stories the book gathers experiences and information from thirty leading conservationists into a guidebook of principles for effective management of protected areas. The book offers a general overview of the status of protected areas worldwide presents case studies from Africa Latin America and Asia written by field researchers with long experience working in those areas analyzes a variety of problems that parks face and suggests policies and practices for coping with those problems explores the broad philosophical questions of conservation and how protected areas can and must resist the mounting pressures of an overcrowded world.

Between the Earth and the Sky Savyasaachi, 2005 In the forest the earth and sky do not meet the notion of horizon doesn't exist Forests have been cleared to open new horizons but this has often been responsible for the destruction of the living world within Between the Earth and the Sky brings together forest writings that cover history anthropology wildlife ecological and environmental studies literature and travel throwing light on different aspects of the forest While Jim Corbett sees the forest as a hunter and Prakash Moorthy weaves a tale about poaching in Kerala Visvajit Pandya writes about the Ongees of Little Andaman Guru Nanak celebrates the seasons in his Bara Maha and Sri Aurobindo celebrates the forest as the Infinite Mother in Savitri while Verrier Elwin and Ruskin Bond celebrate the intimacy man shares with nature The Yaksha Prashna from the Mahabharata and Ramchandra Gandhi's Sita's Kitchen explore the forest as a space for discourse even as Gilgamesh one of the earliest conquerors of the forest stands in sharp contrast with its caretakers like Kotgudin and Billy Biswas

Fisheries and Fishermen Rup Kumar Barman, 2008 Proper management of the natural resources and the rights of the traditional communities to access the natural resources are no doubt important issues in the age of globalization and global warming This book after critically examining the relationships between the fisheries and the fishermen of pre colonial and colonial Bengal have raised some critical points regarding the management production relations and location of the fishermen in post colonial West Bengal Post colonial relationship between the fisheries and the fishermen on the other hand is deeply rooted with the partition of Bengal in 1947 Partition of Bengal had been appeared as a serious challenge to West Bengal due to the huge migration of the fish eaters East Bengalese to this province of India But its supply of fish was not sufficient as Bangladesh erstwhile East Pakistan had retained its possession over the prosperous fisheries of the region All attempts of the post colonial state to mitigate the fish crisis and the question of resettlement of the East Bengali refugee and immigrant traditional fishermen have been critically examined in this work This book will be highly useful to the fishery scientists social scientists historians politicians environmentalists human right activists and to the general readers of the Bengali culture
