The Burgess Animal Book for Children Thornton W. Burgess,2013-05-13 As sure as you're alive now Peter Rabbit some day I will catch you snarled Reddy Fox as he poked his black nose in the hole between the roots of the Big Hickory tree which grows close to the Smiling Pool It is lucky for you that you were not one jump farther away from this hole Peter safe inside that hole didn't have a word to say or if he did he didn't have breath enough to say it It was quite true that if he had been one jump farther from that hole Reddy Fox would have caught him As it was the hairs on Peter's funny white tail actually had tickled Reddy's back as Peter plunged frantically through the root bound entrance to that hole It had been the narrowest escape Peter had had for a long long time You see Reddy Fox had surprised Peter nibbling sweet clover on the bank of the Smiling Pond and it had been a lucky thing for Peter that that hole dug long ago by Johnny Chuck's grandfather had been right where it was Also it was a lucky thing that old Mr Chuck had been wise enough to make the entrance between the roots of that tree in such a way that it could not be dug any larger Reddy Fox was too shrewd to waste any time trying to dig it larger He knew there wasn t room enough for him to get between those roots So after trying to make Peter as uncomfortable as possible by telling him what he Reddy would do to him when he did catch him Reddy trotted off across the Green Meadows Peter remained where he was for a long time When he was quite sure that it was safe to do so he crept out and hurried lipperty lipperty lip up to the Old Orchard He felt that that would be the safest place for him because there were ever so many hiding places in the old stone wall along the edge of it
