developments and strategies of an array of plants and animals as a source of technological innovation and ideas. Thus the lotus flower with its waxy water resistant surface gives us stainproofing the feathers of raptors become transformable airplane wings and the nerve deadening serrations on a mosquito's proboscis are adapted to hypodermics. With Bulletproof Feathers Robert Allen brings together some of the greatest minds in the field of biomimetics to provide a fascinating at times even jaw dropping overview of cutting edge research in the field. In chapters packed with illustrations Steven Vogel explains how architects and building engineers are drawing lessons from prairie dogs, termites and even sand dollars in order to heat and cool buildings more efficiently. Julian Vincent goes to the very building blocks of nature revealing how different structures and arrangements of molecules have inspired the development of some fascinating new materials such as waterproof clothing based on shark skin. Tomonari Akamatsu shows how sonar technology has been greatly improved through detailed research into dolphin communication. Yoseph Bar Cohen delves into the ways that robotics engineers have learned to solve design problems through reference to human musculature. Jeannette Yen explores how marine creatures have inspired a new generation of underwater robots and Robert Allen shows us how cooperative behavior between birds, fish and insects has inspired technological innovations in fields ranging from Web hosting to underwater exploration. A readable yet authoritative introduction to a field that is at the forefront of design and technology and poised to become even more important in the coming decades as population pressures and climate change make the need for efficient technological solutions more acute. Bulletproof Feathers offers adventurous readers a tantalizing peek into the future by way of our evolutionary past.
