AUTO SHUT DOWN RELAY (Continued)

When energized, the ASD relay on SBCIC vehicles supplies battery voltage to the fuel injectors, generator field, O2 sensor heater, boost pressure and air flow sensors, evaporator purge solenoid, EGR solenoid, EGR valve, and NVH solenoid.

When energized, the ASD relay on NVCIC vehicles provides power to operate the injectors, generator field, O2 sensor heater, boost pressure and air flow sensors, evaporator purge solenoid, EGR solenoid, EGR valve, and NVH solenoid.

For SBCIC and NVCIC vehicles, the ASD relay also provides power to the PCM for the O2 sensor heater test. The PCM monitors the signal from the O2 sensor and the signal from the ASD relay. If the PCM detects a problem with the ASD relay, it will turn off the ASD relay and a problem message will be displayed. The ASD relay has also been designed to turn off the engine if the ASD relay has been turned off to prevent heater use, if vehicle is equipped with O2 sensor heaters.

On SBCIC vehicles, the PCM energizes the ASD relay during an O2 sensor heater test. This test is performed only after the engine has been shut off for SBCIC vehicles. On NVCIC vehicles, it checks the O2 heater upon vehicle start. The PCM will operate internally to perform several checks, including monitoring the O2 sensor heaters.

CAMSHAFT POSITION SENSOR

DESCRIPTION

On 2.0L engines the camshaft position sensor is mounted to the rear of the cylinder head (Fig. 1, Fig. 2). On 1.6L engines it is mounted on the front side of the cylinder head.

OPERATION

The PCM sends approximately 5 volts to the Hall-effect sensor. This voltage is required to operate the Hall-effect chip and the electronics inside the sensor.

engine initiated battery PCM when the ASD relay at this input indicates to been activated. This logic then drives an NVC relay
