Flamenco, Regionalism and Musical Heritage in Southern Spain Matthew Machin-Autenrieth, 2016-07-28 Flamenco Regionalism and Musical Heritage in Southern Spain explores the relationship between regional identity politics and flamenco in Andalusia the southernmost autonomous community of Spain In recent years the Andalusian Government has embarked on an ambitious project aimed at developing flamenco as a symbol of regional identity In 2010 flamenco was recognised as an Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity by UNESCO a declaration that has reinvigorated institutional support for the tradition The book draws upon ethnomusicology political geography and heritage studies to analyse the regionalisation of flamenco within the frame of Spanish politics while considering responses among Andalusians to these institutional measures Drawing upon ethnographic research conducted online and in Andalusia

the book examines critically the institutional development of flamenco challenging a fixed reading of the relationship between flamenco and regionalism The book offers alternative readings of regionalism exploring the ways in which competing localisms and disputed identities contribute to a fresh understanding of the flamenco tradition Matthew Machin Autenrieth makes a significant contribution to flamenco scholarship in particular and to the study of music regionalism and heritage in general

The Women of Quyi Francesca R. Sborgi Lawson, 2017-02-17 Drawing substantially on original ethnographic fieldwork from the 1980s and 1990s Lawson demonstrates how the women of quyi a community of Chinese female singers in Republican Tianjin successfully negotiated their sexuality and vocality in performance Owing to their role as third person narrators the women of quyi bridged the gender gap in Chinese performance creating an androgynous persona that allowed them to showcase their voices on public stages places that had been previously unwelcoming to conventional female performers This is a story about female storytellers who sang their way to respectability and social change by minimizing their bodies to allow their voices to be heard

Sounding the Dance, Moving the Music Mohd Anis Nor, Kendra Stepputat, 2016-07-01 Performing arts in most parts of Maritime Southeast Asia are seen as an entity where music and dance sound and movement acoustic and tactile elements intermingle and complement each other Although this fact is widely known and referenced most scholarly works in the performing arts so far have either focused on music or dance rather than treating the two in combination The authors in this book look at both aspects in performance moreover they focus explicitly on the interrelation between the two on both descriptive analytical and metaphorical levels The book includes diverse examples of regional performing art genres from Indonesia Malaysia and the Philippines All case studies are composed from the perspective of the relatively new approach and field of ethno choreomusicology This particular compilation gives an exemplary overview of various phenomena in movement sound relations and offers for the first time a thorough study of the phenomenon that is considered essential for the performing arts in Maritime Southeast Asia the inseparability of movement and sound

War, Exile and the Music of Afghanistan John Baily, 2016-09-01 In the 1970s John Baily conducted extensive ethnomusicological research in Afghanistan principally in the city of Herat but also in Kabul Then with Taraki's coup in 1978 came conflict war and the dispersal of many musicians to locations far and wide This new publication is the culmination of Baily's further research on Afghan music over the 35 years that followed This took him to Afghanistan Pakistan Iran the USA Australia and parts of Europe London Hamburg and Dublin Arranged chronologically the narrative traces the sequence of political events from 1978 through the Soviet invasion to the coming of the Taliban and finally the aftermath of the US led invasion in 2001 He examines the effects of the ever changing situation on the lives and works of Afghan musicians following individual musicians in fascinating detail At the heart of his analysis are privileged vignettes of ten musical personalities some of friends and some newly discovered The result is a remarkable personal memoir by an eminent ethnomusicologist known for his deep commitment to Afghanistan Afghan musicians and Afghan musical culture John Baily is also an ethnographic filmmaker Four of his films relating to his research are included on the downloadable resources that accompanies the text The Music of Malaysia Patricia Matusky, Tan Sooi Beng, 2017-04-28 The Music of Malaysia first published in Malay in 1997 and followed by an English edition in 2004 is still the only history appreciation and analysis of Malaysian music in its many and varied forms available in English The book categorizes the types of music genres found in Malaysian society and provides an overview of the development of music in that country Analyses of the music are illustrated with many examples transcribed from original field recordings Genres discussed include theatrical and dance forms percussion ensembles vocal and instrumental music and classical music It is an excellent introduction to and exploration of the country's vibrant musical culture This new fully revised and updated edition includes time lines listening guides and downloadable resources of field recordings that are analysed and discussed in the text

Musicology, 2007 International Who's who in Music and Musicians' Directory, 1980 May It Fill Your Soul Timothy Rice, 1994-07-13 In this vivid musical ethnography Timothy Rice documents and interprets the history of folk music song and dance in Bulgaria over a seventy year period of dramatic change From 1920 to 1989 Bulgaria changed from a nearly medieval village society to a Stalinist planned industrial economy to a chaotic mix of capitalist and socialist markets and cultures In the context of this history Rice brings Bulgarian folk music to life by focusing on the biography of the Varimezov family including the musician Kostadin and his wife Todora a singer Combining interviews with his own experiences of learning how to play sing and dance Bulgarian folk music Rice presents one of the most detailed accounts of traditional aural learning processes in the ethnomusicological literature Using a combination of traditionally dichotomous musicological and ethnographic approaches Rice tells the story of how individual musicians learned their tradition how they lived it during the pre Communist era of family farming how the tradition changed with industrialization brought under Communism and finally how it flourished and evolved in the recent unstable political climate This work complete with a compact disc and numerous illustrations and musical examples contributes not only to ethnomusicological theory and method but also to our understanding of Slavic folklore Eastern European anthropology and cultural processes in Socialist states
