

The amount of air which the engine takes in depends upon the requirements.

Slow Starting

When proper adjustment of the pilot mixture has been discontinued due to slow air intake it should be considered until a steady and even mixture is obtained. The carburetor stop has been made. The pilot air stops should be re-adjusted. Do not attempt to obtain a very slow mixture because it will probably become uncontrollable under different atmospheric conditions. The theorist stop and pilot air screws are fitted with Rubber "C" rings to make the adjustment and if these screws are taken out, the stops must be carefully refitted.

Throttle Cable

Cable adjustment is provided by means of an adjustment screw in the cable.

Air Filter

If the machine is being used regularly for Competition work or under exceptionally severe conditions, the filter should be cleaned at intervals of one week and preferably before every event.

The filter is of specially treated paper and, on machines used for leisure only, should receive attention at a maximum mileage of 2,000 miles frequently in exceptionally dusty climates. It must be well flooded to remove all trace of dust and the interior of the container treated similarly. It is preferable for the filter to be replaced every 3,000 miles. Failure to clean the filter regularly may cause it to become partially clogged with a consequent deterioration in performance and gasoline (petrol) consumption.
