Book And English Academic Research Grammar Exercises:

English for Academic Research: Grammar Exercises Adrian Wallwork, 2012-09-27 This book is based on a study of referees reports and letters from journal editors on reasons why papers written by non native researchers are rejected due to problems with English grammar. It draws on English related errors from around 5000 papers written by non native authors, several hundred emails, 500 abstracts by PhD students and over 1000 hours of teaching researchers how to write and present research papers. The exercises include the following areas: active vs passive, use of we, articles a and the, zero and quantifiers, some, any, few, etc, conditionals and modals, countable and uncountable nouns, genitive, infinitive vs ing, form numbers, acronyms, abbreviations, relative clauses and which vs that, tenses (e.g. simple present, simple past, present perfect, word order). Exercise types are repeated for different contexts. For example, the difference between the simple present, present perfect and simple past is tested for use in papers, referees reports and emails of various types. Such repetition of similar types of exercises is perfect for revision purposes. English for Academic Research Grammar Exercises is designed for self study and there is a key to all exercises. Most exercises require no actual writing but simply choosing between various options thus facilitating e-reading and rapid progress. The exercises can also be integrated into English for Academic Purposes (EAP) and English for Special Purposes (ESP) courses at universities and research institutes. The book can be used in conjunction with the other exercise books in the series and is cross-referenced to English for Research Usage Style and Grammar, English for Writing Research Papers, English for Academic Correspondence and Socializing. Adrian Wallwork is the author of around 30 ELT and EAP textbooks. He has trained several thousand PhD students from 35 countries to write and present academic work.

English for Academic Research: Writing Exercises Adrian Wallwork, 2012-10-14 This book is based on a study of referees reports and letters from journal editors on reasons why papers written by non native researchers are rejected due to problems with English: long sentences, redundancy, poor structure, etc. It draws on English related errors from around 5000 papers written by non native authors, around 3000 emails, 500 abstracts by PhD students and over 1000 hours of teaching researchers how to write and present research papers. The exercises are organized into ten chapters on punctuation and spelling, word order, writing short sentences and paragraphs, link words, connecting phrases and sentences together, being concise and removing redundancy, ambiguity and political correctness, paraphrasing and avoiding plagiarism, defining, comparing, evaluating and highlighting, anticipating possible objections, indicating level of certainty, discussion, limitations, hedging, future work, writing each section of a paper. Some exercises require no actual writing but simply choosing between various options thus facilitating self study e-reading and rapid progress. In those exercises where extended writing is required, model answers are given. Exercise types are repeated for different contexts. For example, the importance of being concise is tested for use in papers, referees reports and emails of various types. Such repetition of similar types of exercises is designed to facilitate revision. The exercises can also be integrated into English for Academic Purposes (EAP) and English for Special
